Revolution Administered

Agrarianism and Communism in Bulgaria

NISSAN OREN Bulgaria's incorporation into the Soviet-dominated Eastern bloc at the end of World War II has brought about a permanent restructuring of the Balkan geopolitical sub-system. During the last twenty-five years, the country has served as the kingpin and major bastion of Russia's hegemonical aspirations in southeastern Europe.

Professor Oren provides an analytic overview of modern Bulgarian politics and their impact on the geopolitics of the Balkans. He tells how the revolution was administered and how various parts of the social order—from peasant populists to revolutionary communists—responded.

The Greek Struggle for Independence, 1821-1833

Douglas Dakin

Douglas Dakin succeeds in presenting the Greek Revolution as a holistic phenomenon, integrating the many and bewildering factors in the struggle into a clear and complete treatment of the subject. The period is crowded with events, military campaigns, a constant struggle for power by a myriad of persons and parties, unremitting attempts to create the organs of a centralized state, and continuous maneuvers by Greek governments and parties to adjust themselves to the perplexing diplomatic moves of the European powers.

Zdena Salivarová

Summer in Prague

"A novel of distinction and humor . . . , the modulations of feeling . . . belong almost to the Dostoevskian world." —George Steiner in The New Yorker

". . . a very special kind of black humor which I enjoy immensely . . ." —Graham Greene

". . . has the sort of breadth that most English novels cannot have . . ." —Alan Sillitoe

". . . Any Western reader contemplating an agreeable package tour to a noble [East European] city will, to say the least, not feel quite the same about it after reading Miss Salivarová's book . . ." —The Times Literary Supplement

". . . What is it like to be young, Czech and politically suspect? Miss Salivarová answers these questions in a bitter, sometimes funny and touching evaluation of the Prague social climate." —The New York Times Book Review

". . . the most important Czech novel of the present times . . ." —Ferdinand Peroutka (a prominent émigré Czech journalist and a life-long friend of T. G. Masaryk)
