Climate Change, Justice and Future Generations

Edward A. Page, Warwick University, UK

'Climate Change, Justice and Future Generations is an authoritative, analytical and extremely scholarly integration of scientific and technical information, empirical data and modelling concerning global climate change and high-level normative analysis. Page convincingly and patiently lays out the argument, including the ways in which climate change challenges settled modes of ethical thought, despite it being one of the most, if not the, important ethical issues of the age. As a book on both theoretical and applied ethics it makes an important contribution to the field.'

– John Barry, Queen's University Belfast, UK

Global climate change raises important questions of international and intergenerational justice. In this important book, now available in paperback the author places research on the origins and impacts of climate change within the broader context of distributive justice and sustainable development. He argues that a range of theories of distribution – notably those grounded in ideals of equality, priority and sufficiency – converge on the adoption of the ambitious global climate policy framework known as 'Contraction and Convergence'.

Handbook of Intergenerational Justice

Edited by Joerg Chet Tremmel, Foundation for the Rights of Future Generations, Germany

'Do we owe the future anything? If so, what – and why? Our capacity to affect the lives of future generations is greater than ever before, but what principles should regulate our relationship with people who don't yet exist? This Handbook offers a comprehensive survey of the key debates and pathbreaking accounts of potential ways forward – both ethical and institutional.'

– Andrew Dobson, The Open University, UK

This Handbook provides a detailed overview of various issues related to intergenerational justice. Comprising articles written by a distinguished group of scholars from the international scientific community, the Handbook is divided into two main thematic sections – foundations and definitions of intergenerational justice and institutionalization of intergenerational justice.

Constitutionalizing Secession in Federalized States: A Procedural Approach

by Miodrag A. Jovanović, Associate Professor Faculty of Law, University of Belgrade

This book is a thorough and professional study about secession. Starting from the perspective of contemporary political philosophy, it explores the relevance of this issue for the theory and practice of federalism, as well as its status under current public international law, and concludes with a comparative constitutional analysis of the subject matter. In its final chapter, it provides a constitutionalized procedure of secession, based on fundamental liberal-democratic values.

This book argues that a liberal-democratic response to the secession controversy might consist of the constitutionalization of a right to secession. While a number of recent works in political theory point to the fact that, under certain circumstances, the moral right of a group to secession should be recognized, only a few of them are ready to defend the institutionalization of that right through the instruments of constitutional law. This topical and thought-provoking book is a welcome contribution to the ongoing debate on secession and will be of interest to academics in a variety of disciplines such as law, history, politics, international relations, philosophy and applied ethics, and to politicians and constitution-drafters.

Censorial Sensitivities: Free Speech and Religion in a Fundamentalist World

edited by András Sajó, Central European University, Budapest

This book addresses the conflict between free speech and religion. Religious authorities have long tried to “discipline” free speech when it runs counter to religious teachings or dogmas. The reaction to the cartoons about the prophet Muhammad, published in the Danish Jyllands-Posten, demonstrated the resonance of the accusation of blasphemy inside Islam. The conflict is not, however, limited to Islam. The Catholic Church and various Protestant Churches have strongly expressed their hostility toward various books, plays, and films that they consider “collective defamation.” The thought-provoking essays in this book are a welcome contribution to the current debate on how to deal with the clash between free speech and religion in a world where a growing number of people are committed in a fundamental way to religion in everyday life.

The Human Rights Impact of the World Trade Organisation

James Harrison

This book examines the impact of international trade rules on the promotion and protection of human rights, and explains why human rights are an important mechanism for assessing the social justice impact of the international trading system. The core of the book is an analysis of the various ways in which international trade law rules impact upon human rights protection and promotion, emphasising the significance of the jurisdictional context in which the human rights issues arise.

James Harrison is Assistant Professor at the University of Warwick.

Africa

Mapping New Boundaries in International Law

Edited by Jeremy Levitt

The principal aim of this work is to provide a forum for leading international lawyers with experience and interest in Africa to address a broad range of intellectual challenges concerning the contribution of African states and peoples to international law. As such, the volume addresses orthodox topics of international law - such as jurisdiction and intervention - but tackles them from an African perspective, and seeks to ask whether, in each case, the African perspective is unique or affirms existing arrangements of international law.

Jeremy Levitt is Professor of Law at Florida International University.

The Arms Trade and International Law

Zeray Yihdego

There are believed to be about 700 million small arms and light weapons (SALW) in the world, often contributing to highly destabilising security and other concerns in international law. SALW are the primary source of violations and abuses of humanitarian and human rights principles by states, rebels, terrorists and criminals. This book deals with the proliferation of SALW and their unregulated trade and transfer across borders. It addresses questions of definition, manufacturing, trade/transfer, and issues relating to state responsibility. The primary focus is on conventional small arms, in particular military-style weapons.

Dr. Zeray Yihdego is a Research Fellow in Law at Oxford Brookes University.

How Nationalism and Self-Determination Shape a Contemporary Law of Nations

James Summers

- August 2007
- ISBN 978 90 04 15491 9
- The Erik Castrén Institute Monographs on International Law and Human Rights, 8
- Hardback (xliv, 468 pp.)
- List price EUR 130.- / US$ 175.-

Peoples and International Law is the most comprehensive current account of the right of self-determination in international law. The book examines the law of self-determination as the product of the interaction between nationalism and international law. This broad and interdisciplinary work charts this interaction through different aspects of the legal process – in international instruments, judicial decisions, legal obligations and historical context – critically and in extensive detail. The book is essential reading for those with an interest both in peoples' rights in international law and the study of nationalism.

Educational Rights, Skills Acquisition and the Case of Roma

Päivi Gynther

- November 2007
- ISBN 978 90 04 16265 5
- The Erik Castrén Institute Monographs on International Law and Human Rights, 9
- Hardback (xxiv, 348 pp.)
- List price EUR 125.- / US$ 179.-

This book presents an analysis of international law in support of educationally disadvantaged young people and adults. Focusing on Roma, it introduces a scheme for identifying situations where they become subjected to discrimination by state parties to relevant international standards.

The European Convention on Human Rights Collected Essays

Loukis G. Loucaides

- September 2007
- ISBN 978 90 04 15883 2
- Nijhoff Law Specials, 70
- Paperback (280 pp.)
- List price EUR 80.- / US$ 112.-

This volume comprises twelve articles each written to provide an exposition and analysis of a specific topic drawn from the European Convention on Human Rights. Many of these topics are either explored for the first time or from a novel perspective. All the topics are examined and presented from a critical standpoint and some important judgments of the European Court of Human Rights are taken to task. Some of the essays have been previously published in a variety of legal periodicals, and have been reproduced in this volume in order to make them more widely accessible.

This work presents a new perspective on the role of States as reciprocal trustees for the Oceans Public Trust. The concept of the oceans and navigable waters as held in public trust is examined from its origins in the 17th century North Sea fisheries controversy with particular regard to the arguments by Selden and Grotius pertaining to State jurisdiction over oceans and marginal sea areas. Those arguments manifest an underlying common principle of navigational freedom reflected in the parallel public trust development of public rights to fishing and navigation as protected and preserved within the Royal Prerogative jus publicum. The significance for the modern context is that the 1958 Geneva Conventions on the Law of the Sea, the 1982 United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea and a myriad of other conventions now evidence an unstated but patent public trust in the communal responsibility of States within both the conventional and customary regime of the high seas, as well as in regimes for territorial seas and marginal sea areas as shared with extended coastal State jurisdictions. This book is intended to serve as a reference work for this somewhat arcane source of the Oceans Public Trust, and should prove a useful research source for those who study law of the sea.

Law of the Sea, Environmental Law and Settlement of Disputes Liber Amicorum Judge Thomas A. Mensah

Edited by Tafsir Malick Ndiaye and Rüdiger Wolfrum

- September 2007
- ISBN 978 90 04 16156 6
- Hardback (xlviii, 1188 pp.)
- List price EUR 345.- / US$ 493.-

This volume covers a variety of topics in the fields of the law of the sea and the protection of the environment. The particular focus of the volume is on the role and function of judicial, quasi-judicial and administrative institutions in the prevention and settlement of disputes in both of these areas. The work has been compiled in honour of Thomas A. Mensah and comprises 59 essays from leading scholars and practitioners in international law.

- List price EUR 85.- / US$ 122.-

The large-scale establishment of ethnic minorities and diasporic communities in Europe has gained the attention of social science scholars for a number of decades now. However, legal interest in this field has remained relatively underdeveloped, and few scholars have addressed emerging legal issues to any significant degree. This collection of contributions by leading writers in the field of ethnic, migration and diaspora studies therefore provides some important interdisciplinary perspectives of how ethnic/diasporic minorities in British and European contexts interact with the official legal system. This volume makes a significant contribution in assessing the role of law in current debates on the integration of ethnic and religious minorities of migrant origin in the EU.

Self-Determination of Peoples and Plural-ethnic States in Contemporary International Law Failed States, Nation-building and the Alternative, Federal Option

PENNSTATE

SCHOOL OF INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

Tenured and Tenure Track Faculty Positions

Penn State University's new School of International Affairs invites nominations and applications of established scholars, diplomats and senior government officials worldwide for several tenured and tenure track faculty positions. Formally launched on July 1, 2007, and enrolling graduate students beginning in fall 2008, the School of International Affairs will prepare exceptional students for careers and leadership positions in both the private and public sectors of an increasingly interdependent world (for more information please visit www.sia.psu.edu). Our inaugural faculty will be motivated by and dedicated to the unique opportunity of building a new graduate School of International Affairs with programs and standing appropriate to one of the world's great public research universities. We particularly welcome nominations and applications of candidates with interests in any of the following overarching substantive areas: diplomacy and international relations; international economics; multi-sector and quantitative analysis; development and civil society; non-profit organizations; and/or any of the major transnational policy challenges identified by the Copenhagen Consensus. Penn State is committed to affirmative action, equal opportunity and the diversity of its workforce, and we welcome applications from persons of color, women and other groups traditionally under-represented in the academic community. Contact: Professor Tiyanjana Maluwa, Director, Penn State University School of International Affairs, 305 Beam Building, University Park, PA 16802, or siainfo@psu.edu.

INTERNATIONAL LAW: 100 WAYS IT SHAPES OUR LIVES

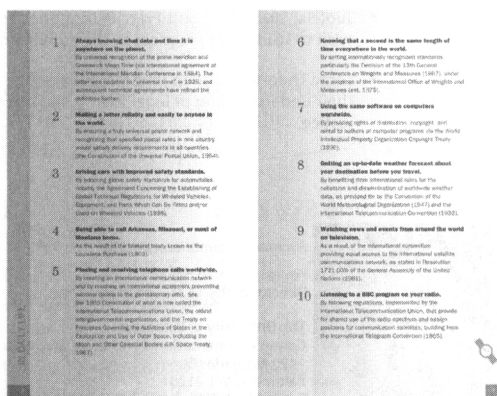

Many find international law abstract and static. Topics such as war and peace or relationships between countries are considered by some to be not so much questions of law, but of power and influence. Others question the existence of international law.

International Law: 100 Ways It Shapes Our Lives was conceived from the proposition that international law not only exists, but also penetrates more deeply and broadly into everyday life than is generally recognized. Some ways are of relatively recent vintage, while others are long-standing. 100 examples were identified by ASIL members, vetted by a smaller group of experts, and organized into seven chapters: 1) daily life; 2) leisure; 3) travel; 4) commerce 5) health and the environment; 6) personal liberty; 7) public safety and global security.

Join us in demonstrating how international law shapes our lives by

- Visiting 100 Ways at <http://www.asil100.org/ways.html>;
- Using it in teaching and general civic education programs;
- Adding ways to the list; and
- Sharing your experiences using International Law: 100 Ways It Shapes Our Lives.

We hope that this creative and interactive project will help demonstrate the diversity and the centrality of international law to our lives today.
