

THE REV. JOHN HODGSON'S CLERGY MORTALITY TABLES.

To the Editor of the Journal of the Institute of Actuaries.

SIR,—On examining the manuscript of the late Rev. John Hodgson's work, Observations in reference to Duration of Life amongst the Clergy of England and Wales, London, 1865, I find that the number of deaths at ages 55–59 among “entrants in this century” was 100, and not 90, as appears on page 29. The rate of mortality per-cent is correctly stated at 1·655.

I am, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

2 & 3, The Sanctuary,
Westminster, S.W.

FRANK B. WYATT.

30 June 1890.
