THE SOCIAL ORIGINS OF CHRISTIAN ARCHITECTURE

Volume 1. Building God's House in the Roman World: Architectural Adaptation among Pagans, Jews, and Christians

L. MICHAEL WHITE

White uses literary, archaeological, and documentary sources to set the architectural history of the early church within its wider cultural context, showing how the change from house churches to public basilicas coincided with crucial developments in the social aspects and religious practices of the emergent Christian movement.

1-56338-180-X 224 pp. $17.00 paperback

Volume 2. Texts and Monuments for the Christian Domus Ecclesiae in its Environment

By focusing on the archaeological record of pre-Constantinian sites the evidence is assessed for the development of individual community buildings in local contexts. The volume is supplemented with site and building plans, archaeological, historical, and geographical appendices, and substantial bibliographical references and archaeological reports.
