

LAWS AND REGULATIONS OF THE PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF CHINA

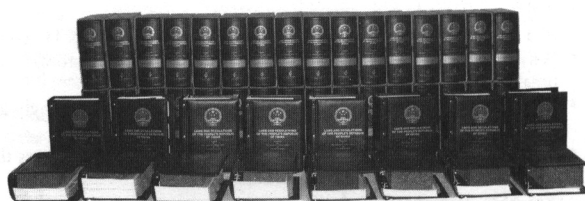

16-Volume Loose-Leaf English Edition

"A decade-long translation project that comes at a perfect time. . . ."

"Invaluable for foreign firms who want to make a name for themselves (in China). . . ."

"The set is the only official edition approved by the Chinese government."

— San Francisco Examiner

With China's official accession to the WTO, knowledge of current laws and regulations is more crucial than ever!

For the first time, the complete and official LAWS AND REGULATIONS OF THE PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF CHINA is available in an authoritative English translation.

This comprehensive 16-volume, loose-leaf bound edition is necessary for any firm practicing in the PRC, and is available for distribution in North America exclusively by China Books & Periodicals, Inc.

Done under the auspices of the Legislative Affairs Office of the State Council with technical assistance and a $500,000 donation from the Asian Development Bank, the publication of this monumental work coincides with China's entry into the WTO.

Fully half of the 16 volumes deal with Economic Law, making this an essential reference for those who trade with China. In addition, Constitutional Law, Civil and Commercial Law, Administrative Law, Criminal Law, Litigation and Non-litigation Procedure Law are separate categories.

For a limited time, China Books is offering this set at a 5% discount from the announced $3,995 retail price, along with free shipping (the books are shipped in two large boxes) to US addresses. This offer is only good until June 1, 2002, so act now!

The Law of Subsidies under the GATT/WTO System

Marc Benitah

By referring to the legal materials of both the GATT 1947 and the WTO systems at each point in his demonstration, Professor Benitah lays a substantial groundwork for determining innovative WTO norms, including:

- Why techniques of attenuation are intimately linked to the birth of past and future legal disputes relating to subsidies;
- Why significant techniques of attenuation (e.g. taking into account the positive impact of a subsidy on consumers) have not arisen in the GATT/WTO context;
- Why much recent theoretical debate on the concept of 'distortion' has not led to a breakthrough in the law of subsidies;
- Why attenuations favouring developing countries are surprisingly legally vulnerable in practice;
- Why deliberate recourse to techniques of attenuation necessitates their continuing clarification through a case law process.

National Security and International Criminal Justice

Hervig Roggemann, Petar Šarčević

One of the main problems of the International Ad hoc-tribunals in The Hague and Arusha, as well as of the permanent International Court, concerns the conflict between national security and secrecy interests of sovereign States arising in legal proceedings as a result of evidence interests and the court hearing the case. While an International Criminal Court cannot succeed without the necessary competence for gathering evidence, it can also not succeed if it fails to take account of legitimate national security interests.

Written by well-known authors and commentators, the articles in the book deal with this controversy from the point of view of comparative law and legal politics. The topics covered focus on experiences and decisions from the practice of both ad hoc-tribunals, as well as political and legal discussions relating to the Statute and Rules of Procedure and Evidence of the permanent International Criminal Court.

Switzerland and the International Protection of Refugees La Suisse et la protection internationale des réfugiés

Vincent Chetail, Vera Gowlland-Debbas

This reflection on the international protection of refugees is organized around four main themes. The first examines Switzerland's response to mass influx, in the light of historical case studies and the evolution of Swiss asylum law and practice. The second focuses on the question of access of refugees to asylum territories and refugee status determination procedures within the framework of the 1951 Convention on the Status of Refugees and current Swiss asylum law. The third centres on the wider protection regime currently being forged in Europe for a broader category of refugees, including temporary and subsidiary protection. The final theme revolves around return of refugees, including those under the Dayton and recent Kosovo agreements and covers reintegration of returnees, assistance and long-term development. This work is based on papers presented at a colloquium of the Graduate Institute of the International Studies in Geneva which was organised in collaboration with the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees as a contribution to the 50th anniversaries of the UNHCR and the Geneva Convention relating to the Status of Refugees.

Marine Issues From a Scientific, Political and Legal Perspective

Peter N. Ehlers, Elisabeth Mann-Borgese, Rüdiger Wolfrum, Cristina Hoß

This volume collects a number of essays and articles from about twenty experts in various fields connected to marine environmental issues. These essays were first presented at the XXVIII Pacem in Maribus Conference held in December 2000, at the International Tribunal of the Law of the Sea in Hamburg, Germany. Reflecting the innovative interdisciplinary approach of the conference, these volume groups contributors from leading biologists, political scientists, geographers, and jurists according to specific regional relevance and not along strict disciplinary lines. This approach allows the experts to treat marine issues concerning regions such as the North Sea, the Baltic Sea, or the Black Sea in a comprehensive manner.

Human Rights and Human Security

Bertram G. Ramcharan

The quest for human security is a defining issue of our times. The international human rights norms define the content of human security. In the contemporary world, it is of the utmost importance to understand the linkages between human rights and human security. The relationship between freedom and security is also a central issue of our times. This is the first book ever to trace the linkages between human rights and human security. It provides answers to a key question: How does the protection of human rights in the contemporary world contribute to human security and how can one strengthen protection in the future?

The protection of human rights is the fundamental challenge of our times. This applies to economic, social and cultural rights, as well as civil and political rights. The message must permeate all societies that the raison d'être of governance is to allow human beings to realize the fullness of their potential in dignity, equality and freedom.

'As will be seen from the present volume, the Office of High Commissioner has taken shape in all these areas. For most of my time as High Commissioner, I have had at my side the support and the friendship of BR who, by presenting different parts of the activities of the Office, helps us to see it as a living, dynamic institution.'

From the Foreword by Mary Robinson.

Conference announcement

The United Nations and the Protection of Human Rights in Post-Conflict Situations

Human Rights Law Centre
The University of Nottingham (UK)
12-13 September 2002

The Human Rights Law Centre of the University of Nottingham (UK) will hold a conference in Nottingham on 12-13 September 2002 on The United Nations and Human Rights Protection in Post-Conflict Situations. This conference is part of a two-year project, co-funded by the Human Rights Law Centre and the UK Foreign and Commonwealth Office. The project is led by professor Nigel D. White.

The conference will consider the UN and human rights protection in post-conflict situations. As the largest provider, as well as the organisation that, to a large degree, has the responsibility for setting the standards in this area, a critical evaluation of the UN's involvement should be a significant contribution to the development of best practice in this area. The major concern is with the UN's establishment of standards and mechanisms for human rights protection following the cessation of hostilities.

The UN's involvement in the post-conflict phase of state building will be considered from the perspective of legal principles, peace agreements, types and levels of UN involvement, past accountability, and future protection. Attention will also be given to case-studies. The aim is to identify the legal framework of human rights applicable to post-conflict situations and then to consider the compatibility of UN practice.

If you would like to directly receive further information when this is available, or for queries regarding the project, please e-mail or write to Dirk Klaasen:

New Titles from Transnational Publishers

THE HUMAN RIGHT TO CITIZENSHIP

Dr. Yaffa Zilbershats

This important work addresses questions such as: Have the rules of international law, emanating from the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, created a means by which individuals can achieve citizenship? Do States have clear guidelines to follow that will ensure persons attain citizenship? Is such a framework practical, and if so, what principles will dictate its implementation? The author defines citizenship and analyses the sources of international law that deal with the issue of citizenship and reaches the conclusion that international law, at this stage of its development, does not vest every person with the right to citizenship.

2002. ISBN 1-57105-197-X. Hardcover/290 pages. Price: #115.00.

POST CONFLICT JUSTICE

M. Cherif Bassiouni, Editor

Thirty scholars and experts discuss and provide wide-ranging views on a variety of accountability measures: the establishment of ad hoc criminal tribunals for the Former Yugoslavia and Rwanda; truth commissions in South Africa and El Salvador; and lustration laws for the former Czechoslovakia and Germany after its reunification. Also discussed are amnesty for previous crimes and accountability, post-conflict justice involving issues pertaining to the restoration of law and order, and the rebuilding of failed national justice systems. In addition, the book also contains an important set of guidelines designed to achieve accountability and eliminate impunity.

2002. ISBN 1-57105-153-8. Hardcover/800 pages. Price: $135.00.

INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL EVIDENCE

Judge Richard May and Marieke Wierda

This book provides an analysis of the law of evidence before international criminal tribunals. It treats subjects such as admissibility; hearsay; identification evidence; forensic and documentary evidence. It also discusses procedural issues arising from fair trial rights, state cooperation, witness protection, and the compulsive powers of the court. The main focus of this work is the practice of the UN ad hoc International Criminal Tribunals for the former Yugoslavia and Rwanda. However, it traces the developments of the law of evidence back to the trials conducted by the Allied powers after WW II. The authors also discuss the future of the law in this field, with comments on the projected implementation of the Statute and the Rules of Procedure of the permanent ICC.

2002. ISBN 1-57105-144-9. Hardcover/300 pages. Price: $115.00.

U.S. FEDERAL LEGAL RESPONSES TO TERRORISM

Yonah Alexander and Edgar H. Brenner, Editors

The United States federal legal responses to the challenge of terrorism constitute a substantial and far-ranging body of statutory law. The materials included in this volume are the most important laws that concern the threat of terrorism. Many of these laws are part of the general criminal and civil laws of the U.S. and apply to various forms of criminal and civil activity, including, but not limited, to terrorism. The book also incorporates the latest legislation, the U.S.A. Patriot Act of 2001.
