CONTRIBUTORS

Karen M. Cook is currently Assistant Professor of Music History at the Hartt School, University of Hartford (Hartford, CT). Her main research interests revolve around the history and development of mensural notation in the late medieval period, and she is currently working on a monograph treating the development of note values smaller than the minim in fourteenth- and fifteenth-century sources. Her other interests are in the development of mensural theory in Avignon, the circulation of theoretical knowledge and the relationship between notation and performance practice; in addition, she works on modern neo-medievalism and on music as a means of characterising identity in media such as television and video games.

Miriam Wendling is a 2014–15 Fellow of the Isa Lohmann-Siems Stiftung in Hamburg working on the project 'Klang-Kontakte'. She received her Ph.D. from the University of Cambridge in 2012.

Anna Zayaruznaya is Assistant Professor in the Department of Music at Yale University, where she co-convenes the interdisciplinary Medieval Song Lab. She is the author of The Monstrous New Art: Divided Forms in the Late Medieval Motet (Cambridge University Press, 2015). Her articles on music of the twelfth, fourteenth and fifteenth centuries have appeared in the leading journals of the field, including the Journal of the American Musicological Society and Early Music History. She is currently at work on a second monograph, centred on Philippe de Vitry.
