History of East Africa

---

Volume III

---

Edited by D. A. Low and Alison Smith

---

The concluding volume covers the final phase of the colonial period, from 1945 until 1963 when the last of the British East African territories became independent. Chapters on legal institutions, the impact of Western thought, and the role of the immigrant communities, look back over the whole span of the colonial era, but for the most part the book tries to assimilate the abundant data available on the crucial post-war years. £14.50

Colonial Rule and the Kamba

---

Social Change in the Kenya
Highlands 1889–1939

---

J. Forbes Munro

---

In this study of the political, economic, and cultural impact of British colonial rule on the Kamba of the Machakos District of Kenya, a focus on the mobilization and allocation of resources by alien and indigenous authorities provides the framework for an examination of social change in the colonial situation. The study is set in the wider context of Kenya's modern history and contributes to an understanding of the African experience of colonial dependency. £7.50 Oxford Studies in African Affairs

Kings and Kinsmen

---

Early Mbundu States in Angola

---

Joseph C. Miller

---

How small-scale and decentralized African political institutions developed into the large kingdoms so prominent in early African history has puzzled anthropologists and historians alike. This book approaches the question from a historical perspective. It is based on the early history of the Mbundu of north-western Angola, and interprets oral histories and Portuguese documentation with sensitivity to African ideologies and kinship systems. £5.90 Oxford Studies in African Affairs

Chiefs and Clerics

Abdul Bokar Kan and the History of Futa Toro, 1853–1891

---

David Robinson

---

Using oral as well as Arabic and French archival sources, the author explains the continuing influence of the Umarian movement, Futa's links with Senegalese trade and politics, and Abdul Bokar's careful blend of resistance to and co-operation with the French. £7.50 Oxford Studies in African Affairs

PSYCHOLOGY IN AFRICA

Mallory Wober

This exhaustive and well-documented report should become an indispensable reference book for students. The author, a psychologist who has himself done research in Nigeria and Uganda, draws together the main threads of experimental psychological work so far carried out in Africa, anchoring them firmly in the framework of modern psychological thinking and technique. Also discussed are the challenges which lie ahead for African investigators now moving into the mainstream of the work.

Frantz Fanon

Social and Political Thought

By Emmanuel Hansen. A major study that extracts and synthesizes, from the rich corpus of his writings, the coherent system of social and political thought of the almost legendary revolutionary who died in 1961 at the age of thirty-six. Fanon's mature philosophy is traced in the course of a life whose principal episodes parallel the growth in his vision and influence—from a youth spent under the brutal repression of a military dictatorship in his native Martinique, through the years of his medical career in France, to the final period of revolutionary activity in Algeria, his adopted homeland. $12.00

THE JOURNAL OF MODERN AFRICAN STUDIES

The Journal offers a quarterly survey of politics, economics, and related topics in contemporary Africa.

The main emphasis is upon the peoples and policies, the problems and progress of this dynamic and disparate continent; upon the many societies that are evolving rather than the essential characteristics of the old; upon the present, not on the more distant past. The best current work is sought from specialists in different academic disciplines, whose contributions can illuminate and cross-fertilise one another.

The Journal seeks to promote a deeper understanding of what is happening in Africa today. It is intended for both the political scientist and the practical politician, the administrator and the advocate, the economist and the educator, the banker and the businessman, the diplomat and the technocrat, the civil servant and the nationalist leader. All have something to contribute to these pages and, it is hoped, much to learn from them.

Editorial policy avoids commitment to any political viewpoint or ideology, whether imperialism, pan-Africanism, capitalism, socialism, or nationalism. Such concepts, however, have relevance to the modern African situation, and merit serious discussion, often from several different points of view, in order that controversial issues may be fairly examined.
