DUANE J. CORPIS is an assistant professor at Cornell University (Department of History, Cornell University, 348 McGraw Hall, Ithaca, NY 14853; e-mail: djc222@cornell.edu). He is the author of a forthcoming book with University of Virginia Press, Conversion, Confession, and the Politics of Religious Difference in Early Modern Germany. He has published several essays on religious conflicts over civic space and place, and he is currently working on a project that examines the history of pre-industrial noise in early modern Germany.

EVA GILOI is an associate professor in the History Department at Rutgers University in Newark, NJ (Department of History, Rutgers University, 316 Conklin Hall, 175 University Ave., Newark NJ 07102, e-mail: evagiloi@rutgers.edu). She is the author of Monarchy, Myth, and Material Culture in Germany 1750–1950, in the New Studies in European History series at Cambridge University Press, and coauthor of Constructing Charisma: Celebrity, Fame, and Power in Nineteenth-Century Europe.

JENS-UWE GUETTEL is a senior lecturer in Modern History at the Pennsylvania State University (Department of History, 413 Weaver Building, Penn State University, University Park, PA 16802; e-mail: jug17@psu.edu). His publications include German Expansionism, Imperial Liberalism, and the United States, 1776–1945 (New York: Cambridge University Press, 2012); and “From the American Frontier to German South-West Africa: German Colonialism, Indians, and American Westward Expansion,” Modern Intellectual History 7, no. 3 (2010): 523–552. Currently, he is working on a transnational history of European socialism and on German immigration policies in the twentieth century.

PETER POLAK-SPRINGER is an assistant professor of history at Qatar University (e-mail: ppolakspringer@yahoo.com). He earned his Ph.D. in modern European history from Rutgers University and specializes in twentieth-century central Europe, Germany, and German-Polish relations. He was a Berlin Program and Social Science Research Council (IDRF) dissertation research fellow, as well as an American Council of Learned Society and Mellon Foundation postdoctoral fellow. He is currently turning his dissertation on the cultural politics of the German-Polish contestation of Upper Silesia (1921–1971) into a monograph.

ANDREW DEMSHUK is an assistant professor of history at the University of Alabama at Birmingham (Department of History, HHB 360G, 1720 Second Ave. South, Birmingham AL 35294; e-mail: demshuk@uab.edu). He is the author of The Lost German East: Forced Migration and the Politics of Memory (Cambridge and New York: Cambridge University Press, 2012). Currently, he is undertaking research for a new project that will compare the politics of memory surrounding the post-1945 reconstruction of three cities that had been part of interwar Germany but were governed by three highly differing regimes after World War II: West Germany, East Germany, and Poland.

Editorial Policy

Central European History publishes articles, review articles, book reviews, and conference reports dealing with the history of German-speaking central Europe. The journal solicits manuscripts using all approaches to history and dealing with all historical periods. Because space is limited, articles which have been or soon will be published elsewhere are not accepted. Manuscripts submitted to CEH should not be under consideration by another journal pending decision of the editor on publication. If it is learned that an article is under submission to another journal while being considered at CEH, consideration will cease immediately. Unsolicited book reviews are not accepted.

Manuscripts and correspondence should be directed to:

The Editor
Central European History
Case Western Reserve University
Department of History
Mather House Room 209
11201 Euclid Avenue
Cleveland, OH 44106-7107
E-mail: centraleuropeanhistory@case.edu

The editors prefer that manuscripts be submitted in electronic form as e-mail attachments sent to the journal's address, preferably in Microsoft Word 2003 or later or WordPerfect 12.0 or later; Adobe Acrobat pdf files will also be reviewed. Manuscripts submitted in printed form must be accompanied by a compact disk or diskette with the article in Word, WordPerfect, or pdf. The entire text of all manuscripts, including footnotes and headings, must be prepared in double-spaced typescript with generous margins to allow for copyediting. Footnotes must be numbered consecutively and should be placed in a separate section at the end of the text.

Correspondence concerning book reviews should be sent to:

The Associate Editor
Central European History
Department of History
Amherst College
Amherst, MA 01002
E-mail: ceh@amherst.edu

Further guidelines for the preparation of manuscripts for publication in Central European History will be sent upon acceptance of materials by the editor. All materials will be edited to conform with The Chicago Manual of Style in matters regarding punctuation, capitalization, and format. The final decision on style remains with the editor.
