International Kelly Prize in German Political Thought

The conference for the Study of Political Thought (CSPT) announces that the second annual George Armstrong Kelly Prize has been extended to include articles published in the years 1990 and 1991. The prize will be awarded for the best journal article, or paper of similar length and scope, published in those years on the history of 18th and/or 19th century German political thought (including political theory, philosophy, etc.). This is an international prize: entries will be accepted from any country, although the articles must be in French, German, English, or Spanish.

Individual authors are encouraged to submit their own work for consideration for the prize. Others are invited to nominate possible candidates for the prize. (Ordinarily there will be one prize for each calendar year; this year, because of problems associated with changes in institutional affiliation of both of the administrators, 1990 and 1991 have been combined.) Submissions for the 1990 prize will automatically be included in the combined 1990–1991 judging.

The deadline for submissions of 1990 and 1991 articles for the Prize is 10 November 1992. Four copies of articles in English, French, or Spanish should be sent to Professor John Christian Laursen, Department of Political Science, University of California, Riverside, CA, 92507–0118, USA. Four copies of articles in German should be sent to Professor Martyn P. Thompson, Department of Political Science, Tulane University, New Orleans, LA, 70118–5698, USA. Winner of the prize, which includes a cast grant, will be announced at the 1993 annual meeting of the CSPT.

The Conference Group for Central European History awards a biennial prize of $500 for the best book in Central European History. Central European History is understood to include all German-speaking countries as well as areas previously included within the Habsburg Monarchy. This year the competition is open to books in English by permanent residents of North America, published in 1990 and 1991. Nominations should be submitted to the chair of the prize committee, Professor James Melton. The deadline for nominations is 15 September 1992, by which time copies of the prize entries should be sent to each member of the CGCEH prize committee. This year's members are Professor Rebecca Boehling, Department of History, University of Maryland–Baltimore County Campus, 5401 Wilkens Ave., Baltimore, MD 21228–5398; Professor Eric Kohler, Department of History, University of Wyoming, Laramie, WY 82071; and Professor James Melton (Chair), Department of History, Emory University, Atlanta, GA 30322. The award will be announced at the annual meeting of the AHA in Washington, DC in December 1992.

Understanding War

Essays on Clausewitz and the History of Military Power

Peter Paret

These essays provide an authoritative introduction to Carl von Clausewitz. Reflecting Peter Paret's three decades of study of Clausewitz and of the history of war, they examine Clausewitz's theoretical work in the context of his time and in relation to war as a general historical phenomenon. Clausewitz's ideas and the methods he employed to express, develop, and test them become clearer when his work is seen against this historical background. Together these pieces shed new light on Clausewitz, on the age in which he lived, and on his theories, which retain a timeless interest.

POLICE AND THE SOCIAL ORDER IN GERMAN CITIES

The Düsseldorf District, 1848–1914

Elaine Glovka Spencer

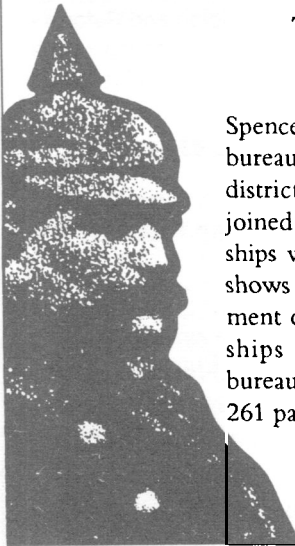

Spencer examines the formation and development of bureaucratic police forces in cities of the Düsseldorf district, offering a detailed study of the men who joined the forces, their activities, and their relationships with citizens and government authorities. She shows how the emergence of the police as an instrument of state power reveals changing social relationships and new patterns of interaction between bureaucracy and society.

The Two Germanies 1945-1990

Problems of Interpretation

Mary Fulbrook

For forty years after their foundation in 1949, the two Germanies appeared, from the most unlikely origins, to have come to represent model instances of quite opposing types of state and society.

Given Germany's turbulent past, this double stability—in the seemingly frozen stasis of divided Europe in the Cold War era—was in itself remarkable enough. But then, with the collapse of Communist rule in East Germany's "gentle revolution" of 1989, a new twist was added to the peculiar course of German history. The fall of the Berlin Wall led ultimately to the reunification of these by now very different societies and economies. The new, united Germany of 1990 faced new challenges as unprecedented processes of transformation threw up a multitude of economic problems and social tensions.

Academic interpretations of the two Germanies have often both informed and been colored by wide controversies. In The Two Germanies, Dr. Fulbrook, Reader in German History at University College, London, charts a clear and informative course through the relevant areas of debate. She also provides the student with a useful guide to further reading.

Communal Reformation

The Quest for Salvation in Sixteenth Century Germany

Peter Blickle

Translated from German by Thomas Dunlap

"Peter Blickle's notion of the 'communal reformation' is the successor to his 'revolution of the common man' and should prove every bit as challenging and controversial. It moves discussion of the social history of the reformation onto a new plane, linking religious developments with wider political and constitutional developments over the long run of German history. As always with Blickle's work, it reveals his determination to uncover the political creativity of subordinate classes in German history."

Bob Scribner
Clare College, Cambridge

The most original and provocative book to appear in its field in the past quarter-century, Peter Blickle's groundbreaking study, which is intended for scholars and students interested in the history of pre-modern Europe, the development of Germany, the history of Christianity, and historical sociology, reconstructs the connection between the crisis of rural society at the end of the Middle Ages, the great Peasants' War of 1525, and the reformation as a social movement. Blickle focuses on southern Germany, Switzerland, and Austria in the later Middle Ages and the early Modern eras (roughly 1400 to 1600), though his work has important implications for the social and religious history of Europe as a whole.

The Villa

as Hegemonic

Architecture

Foreword by Otto Karl Werckmeister

A complete English translation of this classic study, one of the earliest and still one of the most innovative examples of New Left Art History. With its deft use of critical theory, The Villa as Hegemonic Architecture is one of the best examples of how the thought of the Frankfurt School and the New Left relates to art history as a whole.
