It can surely not be considered a waste of time to devote one's efforts to the extension of parliamentary government into international affairs. If mankind can succeed in establishing the rule of law between one country and another it will have removed the one remaining obstacle between itself and that glorious future with which science has been threatening us for decades. The World Federalist exists solely to promote world peace through world law. In its coming issues you will be able to read articles by Josue de Castro, Peter Ustinov and Thor Heyerdahl explaining exactly why they agree with the objects of the World Association of World Federalists. And there is also Senatus Populus Mundi, the controversial series by Robert Anson exploring the possibilities of integrating dictatorships into a world federal government.

STUDIES IN CITIZEN PARTICIPATION IN INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

The World Peace Foundation announces publication of a series of syntheses of research relevant to how Americans in different walks of life think and act toward foreign issues and the effectiveness of different media and techniques in expanding their understanding and participation in foreign policy matters. The series is available in paper-bound editions at the following prices:

- |             |  |                        |
|-------------|--|------------------------|
| Volume I.   | Americans in World Affairs by Alfred O. Hero, World Peace Foundation, is an interpretation of opinion surveys and related data on the behavior of major demographic and social groups toward continuing foreign-policy problems.                    | June, 1959 $1.50      |
| Volume II.  | The Influence of Non-Governmental Groups on Foreign-Policy Making by Bernard C. Cohen, Princeton University, considers studies of the relative influence of different groups outside the Federal Government on formulation and execution of policy. | June, 1959 $ .50      |
| Volume III. | Some Principles of Opinion and Attitude Change by Herbert C. Kelman, Harvard University, and Walter Weiss, Boston University, deals with psychological processes of modification of world-affairs attitudes.  | December, 1961 $1.00  |
| Volume-IV.  | Mass Media and World Affairs by Alfred O. Hero, reviews research on the characteristics of audiences for international content in books, magazines, newspapers, radio, and television, and on the effects of exposure to such coverage.             | August, 1959 $1.50    |
| Volume V.   | Voluntary Organizations in World-Affairs Communication by Alfred O. Hero, describes the participants in various world affairs programs, particularly of a face-to-face, high-content sort, and the probable effects of such experiences.            | February, 1960 $1.00  |
| Volume VI.  | Opinion Leaders in American Communities by Alfred O. Hero, analyzes studies of the flow of international information and interpretation through interpersonal contacts.   | August, 1959 $1.00    |
| Volume VII. | Cross-Cultural Contact and American Attitudes Toward World Affairs by George V. Coelho, National Institute of Mental Health, reviews studies of the effects on Americans of various experiences with foreigners.                                    | September, 1961 $1.00 |
