Andrei Sakharov: "Facets of a Life"

Edited by the P.N. Lebedev Physics Institute

Sakharov devoted his life both to science and to nurturing human values. His vital role in the development of the Soviet H-Bomb and his extraordinarily productive ideas in applied and fundamental physics not only had an abiding influence on technological and scientific progress, but also influenced many political decisions.

This book has been compiled by his colleagues and friends from around the world. Most of the documents and photographs appear in print for the first time. From this unique collection of reminiscences emerge images of Sakharov from his youth to his last day, as scientist, as humanist, as citizen of the world.

"... It reignites the emotional debate over the personal responsibility of a creator whose work supports the military and politicians and the responsibility of a citizen and human being for his or her nation's affairs." Physics Today, September 1992

"This book recalls the disgust and anger of the scientific community, the moral support of his colleagues at the FIAN... It is to "Facets of a Life" that one should turn for passion and immediacy..." Nature, November 1991

MODERNISM AND REVOLUTION

RUSSIAN LITERATURE IN TRANSITION
VICTOR ERLICH

The period before 1917 was a brilliant one for Russian literature, marked by the innovations and experimentations of modernism. With the Bolshevik seizure of power, a parallel process of drastic social innovation and experimentation began. How did revolution in the arts and revolution in society and politics relate to one another? Victor Erlich, an eminent authority on modern Slavic culture, takes up this question in this book, a masterful appraisal of Russian literature during its most turbulent years. He begins by revisiting the highlights of early twentieth-century Russian poetry and goes on to examine the major prose writers of the first post-revolutionary decade. He delineates a complex and ambiguous relationship between Russian literary modernism and the emerging Soviet state.

Russian Law

The End of the Soviet System and the Role of Law

LAW IN EASTERN EUROPE, 45

edited by F.J.M. Feldbrugge

This is the first treatise on Russia's new legal system, as it emerged from the dissolution of the Soviet Union. The first part of the book analyses in detail the political and economic origins of perestroika, indispensable for understanding the basic parameters of the evolution of Russian law. In the following chapters all major legal subjects are discussed against the background of their Soviet past and as the result of the radical changes in the political, social and economic make-up of the country. The appendices include the texts of the U.S.S.R. and Russian Constitutions, the Agreement of Minsk, The Russian Federation Treaty, bibliographical sources, and extensive indices of Soviet and Russian legislation.

The book has been written for legal practitioners, comparative lawyers, and students of Russian law, but will also be of interest to a wider audience of political scientists, journalists, etc.

Comintern Archive

on microfiche

Together, the Russian Centre for the Conservation and Study of Records of Modern History and the Inter Documentation Company, are proud to announce that microfilming of the Comintern Archive has begun.

The previously available Congress Proceedings, which were published in 1920 and 1930, had been heavily censored by the Executive Committee. Now, following the reforms in Russia, there is an opportunity to read about the real history of Comintern, from the original documents.

IDC's incorporation of Comintern material from the archives of the former Central Party Archive (now renamed the Russian Centre for the Conservation and Study of Records of Modern History) starts with the publication of shorthand reports on the first Comintern congresses, upon which the political component of the organization was founded.

The microfiche series published by IDC will include all archive documents relating to the Comintern congresses and Plenums of the Executive Committee, including material from preparatory and working commissions. Nothing will be omitted.

Scope of the project

- Archive indexes will be filmed on separate index fiches -
- Archive material will be recorded on approximately 12,000 fiche -
- Published in ten installments -
- The first installment will be available in the autumn of 1994 -

If you like to be informed about the progress of this microfiche project, please let us know.
