The African University in Development

1978 £5.00/$10.00 cloth ISBN 0-86975-076-3, £3.25/$6.25 paper ISBN 0-86975-075-5

What is the role of the university in African development? How can the university help to meet the societal needs of the communities within which it operates? To what extent should it be shaped by western conceptions of the university? Are African universities developing an identity of their own? These and other questions are discussed in a scholarly and wide-ranging manner in this outstanding book, as it traces the historical development of university education in Africa up to the present time. It is a major contribution to the controversial debate about the place and nature of universities in contemporary Africa.

Quislings or Realists? A Documentary Study of 'Coloured' Politics in South Africa

1978 £14.50/$27.50 cloth ISBN 0-86975-067-4

This is the first major study of its kind, offering invaluable information on contemporary 'Coloured' politics in South Africa. The title encapsulates the main issue of the recurring debate: are those who seek to avail themselves of the limited instruments of power accessible to the 'Coloured' people under the doctrine of separate development merely political realists or are they actually traitors to their community? By drawing heavily upon original documents, many never previously published, this book vividly illustrates the policies and strategies of all the major political forces involved in 'Coloured' politics in South Africa from 1945 to the turbulent 1970s.

Mashangu's Reverie and other essays

1978 £3.95/$7.50 cloth ISBN 0-86975-068-2, £2.95/$5.60 paper ISBN 0-86975-072-0

The title essay and its sequence, The Violent Reverie, represents stimulating and imaginative reading. The complement each other in providing insights into the rich and complex patterns of feeling and thought of an articulate black South African academic. Other essays in this important collection deal with black attitudes in South Africa following the Frelimo success in Mozambique, and with some of the crucial issues, such as Africanization, particularism and universalism, involved in black university education in South Africa.

The Dark Wood: a novel

1977 150 pages £3.25/$6.25 paper ISBN 0-86975-069-0

This volume is a significant successor to Peter Wilhelm's first collection of prose works, LM and Other Stories, published by Ravan Press in 1975. The Dark Wood explores the mythic patterns that lie beneath South African history, crystallized in the story of two brothers who choose, and are chosen by, opposite roles, opposite loves, and opposite destinies. The pattern of their fates is the pattern of the country and its complex encounters between white and white, and white and black.

Contemporary South African Plays

1977 312 pages £6.75/$12.50 cloth £4.95/$9.00 paper ISBN 0-86975-064-X

This is a book of major importance in the history of English literature in South Africa, showing how South African playwrights are meeting the challenges of their country and their times. Containing four complete plays and extracts from three others by leading authors, this collection exemplifies the more oblique, subtler, yet more dramatically satisfying approach all employ in dealing with the complexities of a local, and universal, problem: man in relation to himself and to his fellow men.

Allan Boesak

Farewell to Innocence: A Socio-ethical Study of Black Theology and Black Power

1977 140 pages £2.95/$5.60 paper ISBN 0-86975-066-6

Drawing extensively on the major theological insights of our time, Allan Boesak has written an original and masterly study of Black Theology and Black Power in the overall framework of the theology of liberation. Chapter headings include "The Coming of the Black Messiah", "The Courage To Be", and "Beyond the Sorrow Songs: The Quest for a Black Ethic".

Wopko Jensma

I Must Show You My Clippings: Poems and Graphics

1977 80 pages illustrated £2.95/$5.60 paper ISBN 0-86975-065-8

Jensma is entirely unique and any new book by him is a singular event in South Africa's literary life. His first collection, Sing For Our Execution, appeared in 1973 to critical acclaim. His second, Where White is the Colour, challenged many readers before running foul of the South African censors. This third collection, while characteristically Jensma, reveals new facts, new talents and idiosyncrasies of this artist, described by one critic as "the first wholly integrated South African".

Patrick Laurence

The Transkei: South Africa's Politics of Partition

1976 180 pages £2.95/$5.60 paper ISBN 0-86975-058-5

The emergence of an independent Transkei is at once an event of great political significance and controversy, and represents the climax of twenty-five years of Bantustan policy. Patrick Laurence, the Rand Daily Mail's specialist in black politics, has written a dispassionate yet critical account of the Transkei experiment against a sweeping South African background. He analyses in detail the historical and political processes involved.

Marianne Brindley

Western Coloured Township: Problems of an Urban Slum

1976 170 pages illustrated £3.25/$6.25 paper ISBN 0-86975-039-6

This most important and, after events at Soweto, highly topical study, presents an in-depth analysis of the major problems facing the 'Coloured' people in a Johannesburg slum. It offers practical recommendations for community rehabilitation, and examines problems of housing, productivity, social work, alcoholism, gangs, motherhood, family planning, the marginal father, and the identity crisis of the 'Coloured' people.
