✍ Dietrich Gerhard (Washington University, St. Louis) will join the Board of Editors of Central European History with the next issue, filling the vacancy left by the death of Hajo Holborn.

✍ The Conference Group for Central European History has established a $250 prize to be given every two years to the North American scholar who in the opinion of a prize awards committee has written the best article dealing with Central European history published during the two-year period preceding the awarding of the prize in any scholarly journal in the United States and Canada or abroad. In awarding the prize preference is to be given to younger scholars. The prize will first be awarded in December 1970, and articles published since January 1969 will be considered. Articles may be submitted by authors, journal editors, or anyone else who wishes to recommend them for the prize. One copy of each article should be sent before October 15, 1970, directly to each member of the committee: Werner T. Angress (chairman), Department of History, State University of New York, Stony Brook, N.Y. 11790; Istvan Deak, Institute for East Central Europe, Columbia University, New York, N.Y. 10027; and Paul W. Schroeder, Department of History, University of Illinois, Champaign, Illinois 61820.

✍ The editors of the complete works and letters of J. H. Pestalozzi are seeking help in their search for certain missing works and papers. In particular, they would be grateful for information about the following two works, the first published and the second in manuscript: (1) Heinrich Pestalozzi, Rede zur Einweihung der Armenanstalt Clindy bei Yverdon, 13. September 1818. The exact title is not known, and no copy has so far been found. But publication of the speech is mentioned by A. Dühr, Dr. Jakob Heussi, Leipzig, 1884, p. 12 (“Pestalozzi hielt eine nachher im Druck erschienene Rede”), and in the work Address to the British Public, published ca. 1819, which says that an English translation of the above speech is also being published. (2) Heinrich Pestalozzi (or anonymous), “Briefe über Volkserziehung,” addressed to Greaves, 1819/20–21. This work in the form of letters was never published in German. It was translated into English by C. F. Wurm and published under the title Letters on Early Education, London, 1827. The manuscript is not among the papers of C. F. Wurm, Universitätsbibliothek Hamburg. There are several retranslations from the English into German and other languages. Further information can be obtained from: Redaktion der Pestalozzi-Ausgabe, Dr. Emanuel Dejung, Friedenstrasse 23, CH 8400 Winterthur, Switzerland.

✎ The award of $1000 for the best unpublished manuscript dealing with Austrian history administered by the Austrian Institute, announced in our March 1968 issue, has been awarded to William M. Johnston (University of Massachusetts) for his "Austrian Creative Thought 1848–1938: German-Speaking Theorists in the Habsburg Empire and Its Successor States." Honorable mention was given to Ronald Florence (Sarah Lawrence College), "Growing up in Vienna; the Youth of Victor Adler"; Bertram M. Gordon (Mills College), "Catholic Social Thought in Austria, 1815–1848"; John Haag (University of Georgia), "Othmar Spann and the Politics of 'Totality': Corporatism in Theory and Practice"; Richard R. Laurence (Michigan State University), "The Problem of Peace and Austrian Society, 1889–1915"; and Paul W. Schroeder (University of Illinois), "Austria and the Crimean War, 1853–1856."

CORRECTIONS

✎ A note was inadvertently omitted from the September 1969 issue indicating that "The Defeat of Austria-Hungary in 1918 and the European Balance of Power," by Robert A. Kann, and "The Defeat of Germany in 1918 and the European Balance of Power," by Gerhard L. Weinberg, were first read as papers at the December 1968 meeting of the American Historical Association in New York.

✎ In the note on Hajo Holborn in the September 1969 issue, the editors stated incorrectly that Holborn was "the first historian born and trained outside the United States to be elected President of the American Historical Association, in 1967." There have been at least three others—who, with Holborn, exemplify the breadth and variety of European contributions to American historical scholarship: Goldwin Smith (1904), Jean Jules Jusserand (1921), and Michael I. Rostovtseff (1935).
