CONTRIBUTIONS

The Journal of Modern African Studies offers a quarterly survey of developments in modern African politics and society. It seeks to publish original empirical research, which helps to illuminate broader issues affecting Africa. Papers derived from fieldwork in Africa are particularly welcome. Its main emphasis is on current issues in African politics, economics, societies, and international relations, seeking to benefit from the work of specialists in different academic disciplines, and of those who are currently engaged in the affairs of the continent. Historical studies will normally be accepted only when they are directly relevant to the understanding of modern Africa.

The Journal, which is fully refereed, seeks to promote a deeper understanding of what is happening in Africa today. It is intended not only for students and academic specialists, but also for general readers and practitioners with a concern for modern Africa, living and working both inside and outside the continent. Contributions should therefore be presented in such a way as to be accessible to any informed and interested reader, and papers which take a narrowly technical or disciplinary approach will not be accepted.

Editorial policy avoids commitment to any political viewpoint or ideology, recognising that a wide range of different approaches are needed in order to understand developments in Africa, and that approaches which are unfashionable at one moment may well become widely accepted at another. Controversial papers, and papers which seek to challenge current orthodoxies, are therefore welcome, subject only to the recognition that the purpose of the Journal is to promote understanding, rather than to act as the mouthpiece for polemic.

Contributors are invited from all over the world, and those from scholars and practitioners working in Africa are particularly welcome. Articles should not be longer than 10,000 words, including references and notes. Articles submitted to the Journal should be original contributions and not under consideration for any other publication at the same time. Exceptions to this rule should be clearly indicated at the time of submission. Following publication, authors are entitled to republish their articles elsewhere, in original or amended form, provided that prior publication in The Journal of Modern African Studies is acknowledged.

All correspondence and contributions should be addressed to:

CHRISTOPHER CLAPHAM, AFRICAN STUDIES CENTRE, FREE SCHOOL LANE, CAMBRIDGE CB2 3RQ, UNITED KINGDOM, or by email to csc34@cam.ac.uk

Email attachments should be in Word. Alternatively, contributors should submit three copies to the Editor. Contributors working in Africa need only send one copy. The author's name, address and institutional affiliation (where appropriate), and any other identifying material, should be provided on a cover page, and excluded from the main text, so as to ensure anonymity. Jointly authored papers should identify a single author, with whom all correspondence will be conducted. Manuscripts will not be returned to authors.

Contributors will receive a copy of the issue in which their article appears, plus a pdf file of their published paper.

Contributors to this Journal express their own opinions, which should not be interpreted as the official view of any institution or organisation with which they may be connected.

This journal issue has been printed on FSC-certified paper and cover board. FSC is an independent, non-governmental, not-for-profit organization established to promote the responsible management of the world's forests. Please see www.fsc.org for information.
