

April 30-May 2 at Wayne State University. Guest speakers at the conference were: Ambassador B. K. Nehru of India, "The View from India"; Governor G. Mennen Williams of Michigan, "America's Responsibility"; Francis Wilcox, Assistant Secretary for International Organization Affairs, Department of State, "The United States Program of Assistance to Underdeveloped Areas"; George Blanksten, Northwestern University, "The Prospects for Democratic Leadership"; Martin Bronfenbrenner, University of Minnesota, "The Role of Government in Economic Improvement"; George Cresse, Syracuse University, "The Strategic Significance of the Middle East"; Melville Herskovits, Northwestern University "Acculturation and the Democratic Process." Discussants in political science were Edward Heubel and Max Mark, Wayne State University.

The conference was under the organization and direction of Maurice Waters, political science department, Wayne State University.

OTHER ACTIVITIES

The University of Texas, in cooperation with the County Auditors' Association of Texas, acted as sponsor to a County Auditors' Institute on May 21-22, 1959. The institute was planned as an intensive training course for the purpose of assisting the professional development of county auditors, clerks, and other county officials. Local arrangements were under the management of the Institute of Public Affairs, together with other divisions of the University. It is intended that this first effort will lead to an annual program built on these lines.

Harvard University announced the receipt of a grant of $285,000 from the Rockefeller Foundation for the support of a research and training program in science and public policy, to be carried out by the graduate school of public administration.

The program will study the broad range of problems involved in the financing and administration of scientific research and in the application of science to the formulation and determination of public policy. It will also undertake to train a number of scientists and administrators who are actively concerned with these problems.

The University of Idaho has recently established a bureau of public affairs research primarily concerned with the functions and problems of state and local governmental officials. It is attached to the department of social sciences and headed by Robert J. Huckshorn, assistant professor of political science.

An institute for political education has been established at Morgan State College, Baltimore, Md., and will be opened this year, (September, 1959). The project, made possible by a grant of $103,000 from the Ford Foundation, is designed to encourage participation in practical politics among Morgan State students and alumni, as well as to train citizen politicians.

The director of the Institute is G. James Fleming, professor of political science at the college. Dwynal B. Pettengill, formerly on the faculty of Goucher College, is assistant director of the Morgan project, with the rank of assistant professor. A group of leading Maryland citizens, from the ranks of business, labor and education is serving as advisory committee.

The faculties of the department of political science and the school of public administration at Florida State University have joined forces in the newly organized department of government in the College of Arts and Sciences. Dr. Marian D. Irish has been appointed head of the department. The Government faculty now includes: professors: R. R. Oglesby, Malcolm B. Parsons, James W. Prothro, Elston E. Roady, Vincent V. Thursby, Odell Waldby; associate Professors: Juanita Gibson, Daisy Parker, Paul Piccard; assistant Professors: Richard B. Gray, John S. Vanderoeff.

The ACLS is exploring the possibility of expanding the present agreement on cultural, technical, and educational exchanges between the United States and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics so that it will provide additional opportunities for mature scholars in the humanities and social sciences of both countries to conduct research for periods of three months to a year. ACLS expects to prepare a statement for consideration in the renegotiation of the exchange agreement, and in this connection would be glad to hear from scholars in any of the disciplines included in the constituency of the ACLS who would be interested in carrying on research in the Soviet Union, with as much detail as possible concerning the projected research, including the length of stay desired and the location and description of materials to which access will be needed.

Henry J. Abraham, associate professor in political science, University of Pennsylvania, will spend the academic year 1959-60 at the University of Aarhus in Denmark, where he will be Fulbright lecturer on American political science and constitutional law.

Gordon E. Baker is on sabbatical leave from the University of California at Santa Barbara during 1958-59 in order to continue his research on legislative representation in the West Coast states. He is also a participant in the State Constitutional Studies Project sponsored by the National Municipal League.

Samuel H. Barnes, instructor in political science at the University of Michigan, received a grant-in-aid from the Social Science Research Council to enable him to visit Brussels last summer in connection with a research project concerning Christian trade unions.

Gerard Braunthal of the University of Massachusetts has been awarded a Fulbright grant for 1959-60 and will teach at the University of Frankfurt, Germany. He will also engage in research in the field of German politics.

Harold R. Bruce, professor emeritus at Dartmouth, has been reappointed a visiting professor at Pomona College.

William Buchanan, associate professor of political science at the University of Southern California, has been appointed as visiting research professor of political science at the University of California, Berkeley for 1959-60.

Franklin L. Burdette of the University of Maryland was awarded an honorary LL.D. by Marshall College on May 31.

Ardath W. Burks, Rutgers University, has been serving as Fulbright research professor in Kyoto University during the academic year 1958-1959. He will resume his duties at Rutgers with the rank of professor in September, 1959.

Edward McN. Burns, Rutgers University, has been appointed Fulbright professor in the Free University of Berlin for the academic year 1959-1960. His place as chairman of the department at Rutgers will be occupied for the year by Benjamin Baker.

Gwendolen Carter of Smith College served during the spring semester, as a part-time member of the staff of the department of government at the University of Massachusetts, presenting an interdepartmental social science course on Africa, South of the Sahara.

Frederic N. Cleaveland, professor of political science, University of North Carolina, has been appointed as visiting professor at the University of California, Berkeley, to replace Albert Lepawsky, who will be on leave.

William Cornelius of Agnes Scott College was visiting professor for the summer session at Emory University.

L. Gray Cowan of Columbia will be spending his sabbatical leave in Africa.

Michael Curtis served as visiting assistant professor of government at Connecticut College during 1958-59.

Gottfried Dietze of the Johns Hopkins University returned to Heidelberg to teach during the summer semester of 1959. He was elected to the Academy of Human Rights in Geneva, and will be a participant at the meeting of the Montpelerin Society in Oxford.

Marjorie Dilley was on leave from Connecticut College during 1958-59 to accept a grant under the Smith-Mundt Act. She served as visiting lecturer at Makerere College in Kampala, Uganda.

Milorad Drachkovitch has been reappointed for 1959-60 as visiting assistant professor at the University of California, Berkeley.

Lewis J. Edinger, Michigan State University, has been awarded an advanced research award under the Fulbright program and a faculty research grant from the Social Science Research Council to collect material on post-totalitarian leadership in the German Federal Republic. He will be affiliated with the Free University of Berlin, for the academic year 1959-60.

Heinz Eulau, professor of political science, Stanford University, has received a grant from the Social Science Research Council for research on "Power, Tension and Conflict in the Legislative System."

Luther Evans, former Librarian of Congress and Director-General of UNESCO, has spent the spring semester at the University of Texas serving as consultant on international affairs programs. The University now offers either graduate or undergraduate programs in Latin-American Studies, East European Studies, and International Studies, and is contemplating the establishment of similar programs in other areas. Mr. Evans's function has been to advise staff members and the University administration on the establishment and coordination of such programs and to advise on the needs of the University Library in connection with them.

Herman Finer of the University of Chicago, received a Fulbright award to teach at the University of Leyden and the Institute of Social Studies at the Hague, Holland, during the period September 1 to December 31, 1959. Mr. Finer gave the two opening lectures at the Institute of World Affairs, University of Louisville, on June 16.

Michael J. Flack, associate professor, graduate school of public and international affairs, University of Pittsburgh, has received an Educational Exchange Award to make a study of Attitudes toward Foreign Aid in Mexico.

Ludwig Freund returned to Roosevelt University in September, 1958, from a year's leave of absence. He was appointed acting chairman of the department of political science at Roosevelt University. He had spent the year lecturing and writing in the Federal German Republic on a grant received from the German Federal Government. He returned to Germany in June, 1959.

William Goodman, of the University of Tennessee, has been appointed visiting professor of political science at the University of Michigan for the academic year 1959-1960.

W. Brooke Graves, specialist in American government and public administration, senior specialists division in the Legislative Reference Service, Library of Congress, has been granted leave of absence from September 1959 through January 1960, during which time he will serve as Carnegie visiting professor of political science at the University of Alaska, College, Alaska. He will give one course in American State Government, give some lectures at the University and at other places in the State, particularly at the community colleges at Ketchikan, Juneau and Anchorage. He will also serve as consultant to the state legislative council and to several officials in the executive branch of the state government.

H. R. G. Greaves of the London School of Economics will spend the winter term at Columbia as visiting professor of government.

Mr. James Guyot has been appointed an instructor in political science at Swarthmore College for the year 1959-60, substituting for Charles E. Gilbert, who will be on leave of absence as a Fellow of the Social Science Research Council.

Thomas T. Hammond, associate professor, departments of history and foreign affairs at the University of Virginia, will be on leave 1959-60. He will be on the faculty of the history department as visiting associate professor at the University of Wisconsin.

Ferrel Heady, professor of political science at the University of Michigan was in Israel in late June and July on a summer fellowship for travel and study. He also received a travel grant from the Social Science Research Council to attend the Conference of the International Institutions of Administrative Sciences in Wiesbaden, Germany, August 29-September 3. He prepared the United States National Report on the Conference's Agenda subject "Devolution of Powers to Autonomous Institutions Including Professional Bodies and Universities."

Samuel Hendel of CCNY will serve for a second year as visiting professor of government at Columbia. He has been elected chairman of the National Academic Freedom Committee of the American Civil Liberties Union.

Roger Hilsman will go on six months leave from his position as deputy director for research of the Legislative Reference Service, Library of Congress, in the Fall of 1959 to do research on the making of U. S. Foreign Policy. Financed by a special grant from the Rockefeller Foundation, the project is sponsored by the Washington center of foreign policy research, the Johns Hopkins University, of which Hilsman is a research associate.

Louise Holborn served as acting chairman of the government department at Connecticut College during 1958-59.

Ronald F. Howell of Emory University has been awarded a fellowship to attend the Claremont Men's College Summer conference on political economy in early June.

Frederick C. Irion of the University of New Mexico will serve as visiting professor of government at the University of Texas during the fall semester of 1959-60.

Harold K. Jacobson, assistant professor of political science at the University of Michigan has received a leave of absence for the academic year 1959-60, to enable him to accept the World Affairs Center Fellowship. He has received grants from the Social Science Research Council and the Horace H. Rackham fund to enable him to travel to Geneva during the summer of 1959 in connection with a study of Soviet policy concerning the United Nations economic and social activities.

Samuel Krislov, University of Oklahoma, will spend 1959-60 as visiting assistant professor at Michigan State University.

Ivan J. Kubanis, formerly of the University of Minnesota has been appointed visiting assistant professor of political science at the University of Southern California for the academic year 1959-60.

Robert L. Johnston served as lecturer in political science during the spring semester 1959 at the University of California, Berkeley.

Morton A. Kaplan, chairman, committee on international relations, University of Chicago, is spending the year 1959-60 traveling around the world under terms of a grant from the Carnegie Corporation.

George A. Lanyi will serve as chairman of the department of government at Oberlin College for the year 1959-60.

Gertrude Leighton, associate professor at Bryn Mawr College, has been appointed lecturer in law and behavioral sciences at the Law School of the University of Pennsylvania for 1959-60.

Albert Lepawsky, professor of political science at the University of California, Berkeley, will serve as director of the United Nations Technical Assistance Training and Recruiting Center at Vancouver, Canada, during 1959-60.

Werner Levi, who is spending the academic year 1958-59 as associate professor at the graduate institute of international studies in Geneva, has given a large number of talks on American foreign policy in Paris, major cities and universities of Germany, and over the German radio.

John D. Lewis will be on leave from Oberlin for the year 1959-60 to serve as Fulbright lecturer in American political theory at Oxford University.

Benjamin E. Lippincott of the University of Minnesota attended during the summer the Staff and School Command at Air University, Maxwell Air Force Base, and a seminar on Strategy conducted by the National War College, Washington, D C.

Leslie Lipson, professor of political science at the University of California, Berkeley, will be on sabbatical leave during the fall semester, 1959.

William S. Livingston of The University of Texas has been awarded a Guggenheim Fellowship for 1959-60 for studies in the decision-making process in British politics.

George A. Malley has been appointed an instructor in political science at Swarthmore College for the year 1959-60. He will carry the work of Kenneth N. Waltz, who is on leave as a research fellow of Columbia University in political theory and international relations.

Hubert Marshall of the department of political science at Stanford University spent the spring and summer quarters of 1959 teaching at Stanford-in-Germany, Stanford's undergraduate study center near Stuttgart.

Henry L. Mason of Tulane taught at Columbia during the 1958 summer session and was Fulbright professor at the University of Innsbruck during the 1958-59 academic year.

Herbert McClosky, professor of political science at the University of Minnesota, has received an additional grant from the Social Science Research Council, to continue for three more years the analysis and publication of his research inquiring into the sources of political affiliation and belief among leaders and followers of the American political parties. He will be on leave from the University during 1959-60 under a Rockefeller Fellowship, for the purpose of bringing to completion and publication a set of field studies relating to political affiliation and belief.

Grant McConnell will be visiting professor of political science at Makerere College, University College of East Africa, at Kampala, Uganda, under a Smith-Mundt grant during the academic year of 1959-60.

Charles N. R. McCoy, chairman of the department of political science at Catholic University, will be visiting professor of political science at Stanford University during the academic year 1959-60.

Robert L. Morlan of the University of Redlands will serve during the current academic year as visiting professor of political science at the College of Europe in Bruges, Belgium.

Cecil J. Olmstead of the New York University School of Law will give an international law course at Columbia during the fall term.

Norman D. Palmer, University of Pennsylvania, has been appointed chairman of the international relations group committee at the University of Pennsylvania (an interdepartmental graduate program in international relations). He has also accepted an assignment with the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace to make a survey of the potentialities of a training program for young diplomats from non-Western countries. In order to make this survey he will be on leave of absence for the fall term of the academic year 1959-60. From early September to late December he will make an extensive trip to Europe, Africa, and Asia.

Jewell Cass Phillips, University of Pennsylvania, has been reelected a director of the Philadelphia Regional Chapter of the American Society for Public Administration for two years, 1959-61.

Lester H. Phillips, professor of government and director of social science, University of Redlands, is on sabbatical leave for the fall semester.

Elmer Plischke, head of the department of government and politics at the University of Maryland, is on sabbatical leave of absence during the fall semester of 1959. He will remain in the Washington, D.C. area, and will be engaged in several research projects.

J. E. Reeves of the department of political science, University of Kentucky, is spending the spring semester and summer in England studying local government and elections.

In 1959-60, Peter Remeč will hold a Rockefeller Foundation grant and a Fordham University Faculty Fellowship for residence at The Hague and Zurich. Dr. Remeč will study the sociological approach to international law as developed by Max Huber and Dietrich Schindler. During the summer of 1959, Dr. Remeč was visiting professor at the New School, lecturing on Western European Integration and American Foreign Policy.

Stanley Rothman of Smith College taught at the University of Massachusetts during the summer session, 1959.

Glendon A. Schubert, Michigan State University, will lecture at the University of Oslo, Norway under a Fulbright award for the academic year 1959-60.

Robert E. Scott, associate professor of political science at the University of Illinois, spent the summer in Peru completing field research for a study of the Peruvian political progress begun in 1958 as part of the world wide project on political groups sponsored by the Committee on Comparative Politics of the S.S.R.C.

Mulford Sibley, professor of political science at the University of Minnesota, has received a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation to further his research and writing in the field of political philosophy. He will be on sabbatical leave for the 1959-60 academic year.

David Spitz of Ohio State University will be on leave during 1959-60 to carry on research in political theory under a combined grant from the University and the Rockefeller Foundation.

Leo Stein of Western Michigan University served as visiting professor of political science at the University of Michigan during the summer of 1959.

Carl B. Swisher will be on leave from the Johns Hopkins University during the academic year 1959-60, while doing research and writing on a volume of Supreme Court history for the Taney period. Professor Thomas I. Cook will be acting chairman of the department of political science for that year.

Eduard Taborsky has been awarded a Guggenheim Fellowship for 1959-60 for a study of Communist rule in Czechoslovakia.

Robert W. Tucker of the Johns Hopkins University has received a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation for the year 1959-60.

John M. Vorys, former member of Congress from the 12th district of Ohio, and long time member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, has been appointed a visiting lecturer, part-time, at the Ohio State University.

Wilfred D. Webb of the University of Texas will serve as visiting professor of political science at Duke University during the fall semester of 1959-60.

Edward W. Weidner, professor of political science at Michigan State University, has been invited by the International Association of Universities to participate in the meeting in August in Paris of the International Association of Universities' Committee on the Evaluation of Programs of Cooperation between University Institutions. He will report on the findings of the Institute of Research on Overseas Programs which for the last two and a half years has studied the impact of American university programs abroad and the impact of these programs on universities in this country and in connection with which he and eight others spent most of 1958 abroad.

Leo Weinstein of Smith College was visiting assistant professor at the University of Chicago during the summer quarter.

Guenter Weissberg will serve as lecturer in international law at Columbia during the fall term.

Norman Wengert, who was on leave during the spring semester and served on the Ford Foundation Team to study and report on the agricultural production of India, has returned to the University of Maryland to resume his duties. During the absence of Elmer Plishcke, who is on sabbatical leave during the fall semester, Professor Wengert is serving as acting head of the department.

Richard S. Wheeler has been appointed as lecturer in political science at the University of California, Berkeley for 1959-60.

Allen S. Whiting has been invited to spend the spring term, 1960, as a visiting associate professor of government at Columbia.

Arthur M. Wilson of Dartmouth has been awarded the Herbert Baxter Adams Prize of the American Historical Association for 1958 for his Diderot: The Testing Years, 1713-1759.

Postdoctoral awards for study in statistics by persons whose primary field is not statistics but one of the physical, biological, or social sciences to which statistics can be applied are offered by the Department of Statistics of the University of Chicago. The awards range from $3,600 to $5,000 on a nine months' basis or $4,400 to $6,000 on an eleven months' basis. The closing date for application for the academic year 1960-61 is February 15, 1960. Further information may be obtained from the Department of Statistics, Eckhart Hall, University of Chicago, Chicago 37, Illinois.

The World Affairs Center is offering its third annual Fellowship for the Study of International Organization under a four-year grant from the Rockefeller Foundation. The program is designed to strengthen the teaching of world affairs in this country by helping American college and university teachers gain firsthand knowledge of the functioning and problems of international organizations. The award is given to one person each year, and enables him to pursue a project of his own choosing in New York City relating to the role of international institutions in world affairs.

The Fellowship is open to faculty members who hold the Ph.D. degree or its equivalent, are not over 40 years of age, and who are planning to continue to teach in the United States. The World Affairs Center is a private non-profit organization founded in 1957 by the Foreign Policy Association in cooperation with the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. Inquiries about the Fellowship program should be directed to: Fellowship Program, World Affairs Center for the United States, United Nations Plaza at 47th St., New York 17, N.Y.

Social Science Research Council's fellowship and grant programs for the coming year embody some departures from previous policies and procedures. Prospective applicants are urged to consult the detailed announcement, which will be furnished on request after September 1, 1959, in order to avoid missing deadlines, some of which will be earlier than in past years. Closing dates for applications for some types of grants will be as early as November first. Preliminary inquiries should be addressed to 230 Park Avenue, New York 17, New York at least three weeks in advance of the deadline.

Predoctoral and postdoctoral research training fellowships will again be offered without restriction as to disciplinary specialty within the field of the social sciences. These fellowships may be held only after fulfillment of all requirements except the thesis for the doctorate; under certain conditions they may be held while engaged in writing doctoral dissertations.

Grants-in-aid of research and faculty research fellowships will be offered to mature research scholars of all ages; they are not available to candidates for academic degrees. The terms of faculty research fellowships have been radically changed; awards will be made directly to individuals, for periods not exceeding two years; part-time appointments for three year periods will not be offered.

Several categories of specialized awards will also be offered. As a rule applicants eligible to apply for one of these may not be considered as candidates for support for the same purpose under the unspecialized programs mentioned above. With the exception of the first item, all of the following awards are restricted to mature research scholars of postdoctoral status. The special categories include: predoctoral and postdoctoral fellowships in political theory and legal philosophy; senior research awards in American governmental affairs; grants for research on American governmental and legal processes; grants for research on national security policy; grants for research on the Near and Middle East; travel grants for participants in certain international conferences; grants for research on Latin America and on Slavic and East European areas (administered by Social Science Research Council with co-sponsorship of American Council of Learned Societies); and grants for research on East and South Asia (administered by American Council of Learned Societies, 345 East 46th Street, New York 17, New York, with co-sponsorship of Social Science Research Council).

APPOINTMENT AND STAFF CHANGES

Samir N. Anabtawi, of Yale University, has been appointed an instructor at Dartmouth College.

James E. Anderson, formerly of The University of Texas, has accepted a position as instructor in political science at Wake Forest College.

Paul Ashby has been appointed chairman of the department of government at San Francisco State College effective September 1, 1959.

Douglas E. Ashford, formerly visiting lecturer at Princeton has accepted an appointment as assistant professor, department of government, Indiana University.

Stephen K. Bailey has resigned his chair in public affairs at Princeton University to accept a post as professor of political science in the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs at Syracuse University.

Richard Bald of the University of Michigan has been appointed instructor in political science at Ohio University.

Arthur C. Banks, Jr., visiting professor and acting chairman of the department of political science at Atlanta University will become professor of political science and co-ordinator of the social sciences at Morehouse College next year. Samuel DuBois Cook, on leave to do writing and research under a Rockefeller Foundation Grant, will resume his duties at Atlanta University next year.

David Elliott Bell, who has had a distinguished career in government service, in economic development programs abroad, and in academic administration and teaching, has been appointed to succeed Arthur Maass as secretary of the graduate school of public administration at Harvard on July 1.

In his government service, Mr. Bell spent four years with the U. S. Bureau of the Budget, and then five years in the White House as Special Assistant and Administrative Assistant to the President.

Hugh A. Bone, professor of political science at the University of Washington has been named head of the department succeeding Dell G. Hitchner.

Joseph B. Board, lecturer in government at Indiana University, has been appointed as-