compiled with a life of Billings
by Frank Bradway Rogers

Librarian of the Surgeon General's Library (now the National Library of Medicine), founder of the Index Catalogue and Index Medicus, first Director of the New York Public Library, and innovator in medicine, education, and librarianship, Billings' forthright and stimulating writings are models of rational thought—forerunners in scientific librarianship and automation. Dr. Rogers, former Director of the National Library of Medicine, writes about his predecessor with warm understanding of Billings' importance to medical education and librarianship; his bibliography is the most complete record of Billings' writings. $6.00
