Black Lung

Anatomy of a Public Health Disaster

ALAN DERICKSON

In the definitive history of a twentieth-century public health disaster, Alan Derickson recounts how, for decades after methods of prevention were known, hundreds of thousands of American miners suffered and died from black lung. The combined failure of government, medicine, and industry to halt the spread of this disease—and even to acknowledge its existence—resulted in a national tragedy, the effects of which are still being felt.

"A passionately argued study of a 'disease' that has in the past century and a half been constructed, dismissed, and reconstructed."—Charles Rosenberg, University of Pennsylvania. 11 photos. $29.95

When the Mines Closed

Stories of Struggles in Hard Times

THOMAS DUBLIN

Photographs by George Harvan
The anthracite region of northeastern Pennsylvania harbored coal deposits that once heated virtually all the homes and businesses in Eastern cities. When the Mines Closed describes the decline of the coal industry in this region. It tells the story of working people facing incremental and cataclysmic changes in their world through the words of the men and women and through more than eighty photographs of them, their families, and the larger community.

"We hear much these days about the dignity of work. When the Mines Closed reminds us again that it is not work that dignifies life, it is people who dignify work."
—Ronald J. Grele, Columbia University. 3 drawings, 80 photos $55.00 cloth, $16.95 paper

Copper Crucible

*How the Arizona Miners' Strike of 1983 Recast Labor-Management
Relations in America*

Second Edition

JONATHAN
D. ROSENBLUM

A Choice Magazine "Outstanding Academic Book" With a new epilogue In this new edition, Jonathan D. Rosenblum describes the resurgence in 1996 and 1997 of union activism at Local 890 in Silver City, New Mexico, the famous "Salt of the Earth" union. Phelps Dodge obliterated all the unions at its Arizona properties in the devastating 1983 campaign of permanent replacement. It later acquired the Chino mine in western New Mexico; with the copper ore came the elements of union rebirth. Local 890 beat back Phelps Dodge's 1996 decertification campaign, handing the company its first major setback against unions in fifteen years. AN ILR Press Book. $17.95 paper

The Betrayal of Local 14

JULIUS GETMAN

This book recounts the story of the strike by twelve hundred workers at International Paper's Androscoggin mill in Jay, Maine.

"Julius Getman captures the human as well as the political dimensions of the doomed strike at International Paper. He recounts individual heroism amidst the company's insensitivity, the union's indecisiveness, and the law's inadequacy. All those concerned for the future of the labor movement should ponder this story."—James Brudney, School of Law, Ohio State University. AN ILR Press Book. 15 photos. $29.95

Editors

Karen Orren, University of California, Los Angeles
Stephen Skowronek, Yale University

Studies in American Political Development publishes high quality scholarship covering American political change and institutional development from a historical perspective. Articles focus on government institutions and their social, economic and cultural environment. The journal features in-depth original articles, which allow scholars to elaborate on the complex patterns of state-society relations. These longer articles also encourage an interdisciplinary approach—tying in relevant issues and related themes. In addition, SAPD recognizes the importance of comparative politics to the study of American institutions.

Which way for labor in the 21st century?

WHY UNIONS MATTER

by Michael D. Yates

"When people asked me for a good, basic introduction to the labor movement, I used to draw a blank. Well, here it is at last. WHY UNIONS MATTER is a comprehensive, readable introduction to the history, structure, functioning, and yes, the problems of U.S. unions. For labor and political activists just coming on the scene or veterans looking for that missing overview, this is the place to start."
