Survival in Two Worlds

Moshoeshoe of Lesotho 1786–1870

Leonard Thompson

Moshoeshoe grew up in the interior of southern Africa when it was still isolated from the wider world. He began to build a kingdom when his home was invaded by other Africans, but for the rest of his life he struggled to preserve for his people as much territory, social cohesion, and political autonomy as he could in the face of white expansion. The modern state of Lesotho is his legacy; this book is a convincing portrait of a skilful and far-sighted patriot. Illustrated £9.50 paper covers £2.50

Johannes IV of Ethiopia

A Political Biography

Zewde Gabre-Sellassie

The reunification of the Ethiopian Empire during the period 1868–89 is a theme scarcely touched upon by contemporary chronicles or later scholars. Emperor Tewodoors, who preceded Johannes IV, and Menelik who succeeded him, have both been claimed as the founders of modern Ethiopia. The author shows how it was Johannes who fulfilled the idea of imperial unity, resisting threats to the independence of his country from without and the disruptive forces always at work within. £9.50 Oxford Studies in African Affairs

The Black Sash of South Africa

A Case Study in Liberalism

Cherry Michelman

Dr. Michelman gives the first detailed account of this South African middle-class, female, white organization from its limited opposition to the Nationalist Government on the issue of the Senate Bill in 1955–6 to its widening political consciousness and activity for the rights of non-whites. £6.50 Institute of Race Relations

Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia

The Times and the Man

Fergus Macpherson

This is the first major biography of Kenneth Kaunda, starting with his birth and family background, and taking his remarkable career as a politician and nationalist up to his appointment as President of the new Republic of Zambia on 24 October 1964. Illustrated £5 paper covers £3.20
