Polar Record (ISSN 0032-2474) is published four times yearly in January, April, July and October, the four issues making up a volume. First published in January 1931, it appeared twice yearly up to July 1954 and three times yearly up to September 1987. Polar Record reports progress in all fields of research for the polar community.

Contributions

Contributions are invited on all subjects of polar interest, including accounts of fieldwork. The Editor welcomes articles (normally up to 8000 words), notes (up to about 2000 words), letters, brief items of interest, and books, reports, etc for review. Discussion with the Editor beforehand may save time and trouble. For details of style, see a recent copy of Polar Record.

Please send manuscripts to The Editor, Polar Record, Scott Polar Research Institute, Lensfield Road, Cambridge, CB2 1ER, UK. Manuscripts that appear suitable for publication are refereed, and those accepted for publication will usually be published within a few months — normally less than a year from the original receipt. Authors receive proofs for correction. Authors of articles receive 30 free reprints; additional reprints may be ordered when proofs are returned. Books, reports and other publications for reviewing should be sent direct to the Editor at the above address, marked 'For review'; they will be reviewed at the Editor's discretion.

Copyright ownership is normally vested in the publishers of Polar Record, but will be reassigned to contributors on request. Opinions expressed by contributors are not necessarily those of the Editor, the Director or Management Committee of the Scott Polar Research Institute, or the University of Cambridge.

Place names used in Polar Record are those authorized by the administrative authorities recognized by the British Government; names not so authorized are avoided or set in quotation marks. Russian names are transliterated by the system agreed in 1947 between the United States Board on Geographic Names and the Permanent Committee on Geographical Names for British Official Use; see Polar Record 6(44): 546 (1952).
