Church and State in Ethiopia 1270-1527

Taddesse Tamrat

This book reconstructs the history of Christian Ethiopia during the period when the state suddenly grew into an extensive empire, bringing under its control many pagan Falashe and Muslim peoples. From the rich historical records of medieval Ethiopia the author has been able to fill many gaps and to cover the history of the whole period as part of a single dynamic trend of development. ## The Roots of Segregation

Native Policy in Natal 1845-1910

David Welsh

Shepstone's system in Natal was the precursor of the later policy of segregation, and also influenced events further north. Based on extensive research and familiarity with diverse racial and language groups, Dr Welsh's penetrating analysis highlights current issues in government, law, economic policy, and education in Africa generally. £6.25 OUP South Africa

Priests and Politicians

Protestant and Catholic Missions in Orthodox Ethiopia
1830-1868

Donald Crummey

This book casts significant new light on internal Ethiopian developments. It reveals a variety of missionary strategies and discusses them with particular reference to two areas: attitudes towards the Ethiopian Orthodox Church, and the degree to which missions identified Christianity with European culture.
