In addition, the editors shall welcome essays from both scholars and public figures addressing political, social, economic, and cultural aspects of the international relations of Latin America. Lastly, we shall be pleased to review articles that dwell on the policy implications and relevance for Latin America of issues that have been explored in their technical and substantive details elsewhere.

MAKING NAFTA WORK: U.S. FIRMS AND THE NEW NORTH AMERICAN BUSINESS ENVIRONMENT

by Stephen Blank and Jerry Haar

Blank and Haar examine how dynamic changes in the North American business environment, accelerated by NAFTA, have transformed corporate strategies and structures and affected patterns of U.S. investment in North America. Using a series of survey questionnaires and focused interviews with U.S. multinational subsidiary executives in Mexico and Canada, the authors determine what firms hope to gain from the new North American rationalization and integration strategies and analyze the factors that have driven those strategies.

Stephen Blank is professor of management and international business at the Lubin School of Business at Pace University.

Jerry Haar is senior research associate and director of the Inter-American Business and Labor Program of the North-South Center at the University of Miami.

POLITICS, SOCIAL CHANGE, AND ECONOMIC RESTRUCTURING IN LATIN AMERICA

edited by

William C. Smith and Roberto Patricio Korzeniewicz

While regime transition and market-oriented reforms in Latin America have been the subjects of considerable academic research, most scholars have paid relatively little attention to the social impacts of economic restructuring. In contrast, this book contributes a systematic analysis of the impact of economic liberalism on Latin America's social and political life. The authors offer innovative theoretical and comparative explorations of changes in the social structure, as well as evolving patterns of social and political organization, including social movements, political parties, labor unions, and non-governmental organizations.

This volume is an invaluable resource for all those concerned with the far-reaching consequences of economic and political transformation in Latin America.

William C. Smith is professor of political science at the Graduate School of International Studies, University of Miami.

Roberto Patricio Korzeniewicz is assistant professor of sociology at the University of Maryland in College Park.

"This book helps to fill a serious gap in the literature by enhancing our understanding of the social and political impact of neoliberal reforms. . . . a major addition to the high quality Latin American collection that the North-South Center has already published."

God's Angry Babies

A Novel

Ian G. Strachan

This coming-of-age novel by the accomplished Bahamian writer Ian G. Strachan traces the life of Tree Bodie as he grows up in the Yellow and White House and the nameless streets of Pompey Village, far (though not in distance) from the sanitized world of Santa Maria's luxury hotels.

Against the backdrop of the internal struggles of a Caribbean island nation, Strachan tells the story of Tree's adventures (and misadventures) "backadabush," his joys and pains, the conflicts within his family, and his ambivalent involvement in Santa Marian politics. Sometimes in Strachan's own voice, sometimes in Tree's, and often as seen by the iron-willed Maureen Bodie (Tree's mother), the air, the scenes, even the language of Pompey Village—and the triumphs and disasters of the people who live there—become palpable.
