Science in Contemporary China

Edited by Leo A. Orleans. With the assistance of Caroline Davidson. This is the first comprehensive survey of Chinese science since 1961, a collection of 28 papers by distinguished American scientists describing developments of the late 1970's in the natural and social sciences, and several areas of technology. Chapters dealing with individual disciplines include a brief historical sketch, an account of current research, a description of the relevant research centers and scientific journals, and an assessment of the subject's importance within China's developmental priorities. Nearly all the contributors have recently visited China. $35.00

Dictionary of Chinese Law and Government

Chinese-English

Philip R. Bilancia. An indispensable tool for anyone studying the institutional life of contemporary China, this is an entirely new dictionary of more than 25,000 Chinese terms, at least 15,000 examples of usage, and more than 30,000 cross-references. The coverage extends from 1939 to 1977, a period of enormous terminological complexity, and treats every aspect of legal and administrative terminology, as well as terms of political, historical, and sociological interest. The sources are largely from the Communist period, but pre-1949 usage is well represented. The Wade-Giles system of transliteration is used, but the volume contains a Chinese Transliteration Conversion Table for easy conversion to Pinyin and other systems. $45.00

Modern Asian Studies is concerned with the history, geography, politics, sociology, literature, economics and social anthropology of South Asia, South-East Asia, China and Japan.

Contributions should be based on original research or field-work. They should be between 2000 and 8000 words long. Two typed copies should be submitted. Each author will receive twenty-five free offprints of his article and a copy of the Journal in which it appears.

Submission of an article will be taken to imply that it has not been previously published and that it is not on offer to any other publisher. In the interests of authors, copyright is normally assigned to Cambridge University Press. The editor welcomes expression of all shades of opinion, but responsibility for them rests with their authors.

All correspondence should be addressed to Dr Gordon Johnson, Selwyn College, Cambridge CB3 9DQ, England.
