Hyperownership in a Time of Biotechnological Promise: The International Conflict to Control the Building Blocks of Life

Sabrina Safrin 641

This article provides a utilitarian critique of the interplay between patent-based private claims to genetic material favored by developed countries and state ownership favored by developing countries. It argues that collectively these systems have overreached, creating an interactive spiral of excessive enclosure of genetic material that deters biotechnological innovation, generates tension between nations, and threatens individuals and indigenous communities. It proposes a framework for a more open system.

THE AMERICAN SOCIETY OF INTERNATIONAL LAW

The American Society of International Law was organized in 1906 "to foster the study of international law and to promote the establishment and maintenance of international relations on the basis of law and justice." Society membership is open to all persons of any nationality and profession who are interested in its objectives. Dues are: regular, $165; special category, $110; new professional, $85; retired, $110; student, $30. Sustaining Memberships—contributing ($275) and patrons ($10,000)—are also available. Corporations may join ASIL as institutional members ($2,000). The Society is incorporated by Act of Congress approved September 20, 1950 (64 Stat. 869).
