FEMINISM IN EIGHTEENTH-CENTURY ENGLAND Katharine M. Rogers

Examines the diarists, essayists, and novelists of 18th-century England (among them Mary Wollstonecraft, Lady Mary Wortley Montagu, Fanny Burney, Mary Astell, Hannah More, Jane Barker, Charlotte Lennox, Elizabeth Inchbald, Charlotte Smith) and shows that even the most conservative among them protested the assumptions of their patriarchal society. Yet even the most radical were inhibited by the prevailing traditions regarding the nature and role of women. $18.95

REASON'S DISCIPLES Seventeenth-Century English Feminists Hilda Smith

Smith analyzes the prose and poetry of fifteen writers spanning three-quarters of a century and shows that a strong feminist ideology emerged well before the popular movements of the 19th and 20th centuries. The English Civil War, the economic changes of the 1600s, and the expansion of the scientific revolution provide the backdrop to the feminist ideas of writers such as the Duchess of Newcastle, Mary Astell, and Sarah Fyge Egerton. $18.95

A STATEMENT OF EDITORIAL POLICY

PMLA welcomes essays of interest to those concerned with the study of language and literature. As the publication of a large and heterogeneous association, the journal is receptive to a variety of topics, whether general or specific, and to all scholarly methods and theoretical perspectives. The ideal PMLA essay exemplifies the best of its kind, whatever the kind; addresses a significant problem; draws out clearly the implications of its findings; and engages the attention of its audience through a concise, readable presentation. Articles of fewer than 2,500 words or more than 12,500 words are not considered for publication. Translations should accompany foreign language quotations. The MLA urges its contributors to be sensitive to the social implications of language and to seek wording free of discriminatory overtones.

Only members of the Association may submit articles to PMLA. Each article submitted is sent to at least one consultant reader and one member of the Advisory Committee. Articles recommended by these readers are then sent to the members of the Editorial Board, who meet periodically with the Editor to make final decisions. Until a final decision is reached, the author's name is not made known to consultant readers, to members of the Advisory Committee and the Editorial Board, or to the Editor.

Submissions, prepared according to the MLA Handbook for Writers of Research Papers, Theses, and Dissertations, should be addressed to the Editor of PMLA, 62 Fifth Avenue, New York, New York 10011. The author's name should not appear on the manuscript; instead, a cover sheet, with the author's name, address, and the title of the article, should accompany the article. Authors should not refer to themselves in the first person in the submitted text or notes if such references would identify them; any necessary references to the author's previous work, for example, should be in the third person.
