Dear Sir Harold,

It is with great pleasure that we, your friends, colleagues, and pupils present to you this volume on the occasion of your seventieth birthday. The authors of the studies collected in this issue of BSOAS have responded to our invitation with alacrity, happy in this opportunity to pay tribute to your distinction and eminence in the field of oriental studies in Britain and throughout the world. In addition to your masterly works on Khotanese, a subject in which you have long been the leading authority, you have contributed extensively to Vedic, Sanskrit, and the many branches of Iranian studies. You have displayed in all your writings wide and deep erudition in a large number of languages and literatures, ranging as far as Celtic, Ossetic and Georgian, Turkish, Tokharian, and Japanese. It would be hard to find any contributor to this volume who has not, at least through your numerous writings, been your pupil and admirer.

Yours sincerely,
Edward Ullendorff
