

The Graduate Institute of International Studies, Geneva
Applications are invited for a full-time position of Professor/Associate Professor of International Economic Law
starting on a mutually agreed-upon date but preferably no later than 1st September 2007

The Institute is looking for a specialist in international economic law with special emphasis on the legal framework of the World Trade Organization (WTO). Candidates must demonstrate an excellent grasp of WTO law and have a strong grounding in general international law. It would be helpful for candidates to be able to demonstrate additional knowledge of one or more of the following fields as they relate to the work of the WTO: European Union law, international intellectual property law, and international organizations law

Applicants must hold a doctorate in law or have a senior university teaching position. Applicants must have a considerable teaching and publications record. They would be expected to teach mainly at the graduate level and to supervise PhDs in international law. The language of instruction is either English or French, but candidates will be expected to acquire shortly a working knowledge of the other language. The Institute specifically encourages women to apply.

Applications, together with a detailed curriculum vitae and a list of publications, must reach the Director, the Graduate Institute of International Studies, rue de Lausanne 132, 1211 Geneva 21, Switzerland (fax: +41 22 731 27 77 – email: schwab@hei.unige.ch) no later than 15 August 2006. Applications received after this date will not be considered. General terms of appointment for such a post may be obtained upon request. The Institute reserves the right to fill this position by invitation.

For more information about the Institute, candidates are encouraged to consult the Institute's website: <http://hei.unige.ch>

The German Act Against Restraints of Competition

Dr. Carsten Gromotke, Jones Day, Frankfurt
Dr. Johannes Zöttl, Jones Day, Frankfurt

The recently adopted German Competition Act brings about the most significant changes to German Competition law since its inception in 1957. It includes the abolition of the traditional distinction between horizontal and vertical restraints of trade, strengthened private anti-trust enforcement, and the alignment of the German Act with the new European anti-trust enforcement system.

This new bilingual edition of the German Act makes it possible to understand the nuances of the Act by providing a precise and accurate translation, valuable commentary to explain the broader context of the law in practice, and relevant documents such as cooperation agreements.

Introducing a NEW Landmark Series from Annual Reviews
Annual Review of Law and Social Science[™]
Volume 2, December 2006—Available Online and in Print

Editor: John Hagan, Northwestern University

The Annual Review of Law and Social Science strives to enhance the understanding of the complex connections between law, culture, and society by focusing on social scientific studies of law and law-like systems of rules, institutions, processes, and behaviors. This groundbreaking series provides multidisciplinary insights into the impact of law, aggregated human behavior and interactions, analytic and normative jurisprudence, the dynamics of decision making and enforcement of authoritative rules, as well as the variations and changes in legal institutions and the management of social change by these institutions.

This series is the ideal resource for legal scholars, sociologists, political scientists, and criminologists, as well as those involved in criminal justice and social welfare departments, penal systems, judicial review, or public policy.

International Organizations and their Exercise of Sovereign Powers

Dan Sarooshi, Herbert Smith Reader in International Law,
Faculty of Law, University of Oxford; Fellow, The Queen's College, Oxford
Foreword by Judge Rosalyn Higgins, DBE, QC,
President of the International Court of Justice

"The clarity and thoroughness of [Sarooshi's] analysis provides a firm foundation for the development of the law in this important area."

Professor Vaughan Lowe and Professor Ian Brownlie QC (Emeritus), Series Editors' Preface

International Organizations and their Exercise of Sovereign Powers provides a conceptual and legal analysis of one of the most important challenges currently facing international organizations such as the UN, the WTO, and the European Union: their exercise of sovereign powers. Sarooshi thoroughly examines the content of the law that governs both the exercise of sovereign powers by international organizations and the relationships between organizations and their member states.

Human Rights in Criminal Proceedings

Stefan Trechsel, Professor of Criminal Law and Procedure at the University of Zurich, and a former President of the European Commission of Human Rights

In Human Rights in Criminal Proceedings, the case law of the most important and influential international bodies dealing with such issues is presented and critically examined by an author who has spent almost a quarter of a century contributing to its evolution. The law of the European Convention is emphasized because of its advanced procedures and the quality and quantity of its case-law. There is also considerable coverage of the application of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and the American Convention on Human Rights.

ASIL AWARD WINNERS

WINNER OF THE AWARD FOR A WORK IN A SPECIALIZED AREA OF INTERNATIONAL LAW

The Constitutionalization of the World Trade Organization Legitimacy, Democracy, and Community in the International Trading System

Deborah Z. Cass, Reader in Law, London School of Economics and Political Science

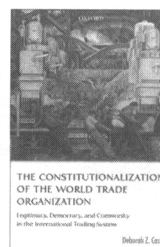

"Deborah Cass has achieved that rare thing: an account which is sophisticated at both a theoretical and a doctrinal level. Her book will be a benchmark for all future writing on this theme."

Joanne Scott, University of Cambridge

In her book, Cass argues that the WTO is not and should not be described as a constitution, either by the standards of any received account of that term, or by any of the current WTO models, because under these definitions serious issues of legitimacy, democracy and community are at stake. Instead, Cass argues that what is needed is a constitutionalized WTO which considers the economic development needs of states and takes account of the skewed playing field of international trade and its effect on the economic prospects of developing countries. In short, trading democracy, legitimacy and community and not trading constitutionalization, are the biggest challenges facing the WTO.

International Organizations as Law-makers

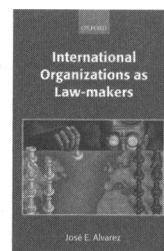

José E. Alvarez, Professor at Columbia Law School and Executive Director of the Center on Global Legal Problems

"Jose Alvarez offers a comprehensive treatment of the topic that skilfully melds theory, practice, and history. Deftly weaving together insights and evidence from both international law and international relations."

Professor Kal Raustiala, UCLA Law School

International Organizations as Law-makers addresses how international organizations with a global reach, such as the UN and the WTO, have changed the mechanisms and reasoning behind the making, implementation, and enforcement of international law.

Predictability and Flexibility in the Law of Maritime Delimitation

Yoshifumi Tanaka

The principal aim of this book is the quest for a well-balanced legal system that reconciles predictability and flexibility in the law of maritime delimitation. As with all types of law, the law of maritime delimitation should possess a degree of predictability. On the other hand, as maritime delimitation cases differ, flexible considerations of geographical and non-geographical factors is also required in order to achieve equitable results. How, then, is it possible to ensure predictability while taking into account a diversity of factors in order to achieve an equitable result? This, according to the author, is the question at the heart of the law of maritime delimitation.

Biotechnology and International Law

Edited by Francesco Francioni and Tullio Scovazzi

The biotechnology revolution is putting great strains on the ability of law to adapt to new challenges and threats. Although there is general agreement on the need to regulate biotechnology in many different fields of human activity domestic law remains deeply divided over the best approach to take. This book is the first attempt at covering the most pressing legal issues raised by the impact of biotechnologies on different categories of international norms. The objective of the book is to provide an up-to-date picture of international law as it stands today.

International Trade Regulation in China

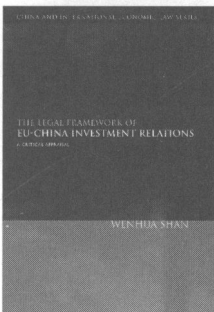

Law and Policy

Xin Zhang

This book presents a comprehensive survey of Chinese legal and regulatory systems governing international trade following China's accession to the World Trade Organisation and the coming into force of the revised PRC Foreign Trade Law. It provides an in-depth analysis on the text of applicable Chinese laws and rules, with a particular focus on their practical application. The book combines analysis with detailed practical advice and will be of interest to academics, practitioners and policy makers.

The Legal Framework of EU-China Investment Relations

A Critical Appraisal

Wenhua Shan

This book explores and critically appraises the existing legal framework governing EU-China investment relations, particularly EU investment in China. What the book demonstrates is that the time is ripe for a new international legal framework for foreign investment in China, and that as EU-China economic and political relations continue to improve, construction of such a framework is not only necessary, but also possible.
