A TREATISE ON TIME AND SPACE

J. R. Lucas

This is an original and comprehensive book, which fills a gap in the existing literature of the subject. Mr Lucas discusses in detail the philosophical mathematical, physical, logical and theological aspects of our understanding of time and space. His exposition of the elusive concept of space-time is set out with great clarity. February £7.00

INTRODUCTION TO CONFIRMATION THEORY

Richard Swinburne

The author provides an introduction to the subject in some detail, while at the same time providing solutions to disputed questions and to developing a coherent approach. £3.90

NEW FROM TAVISTOCK

SYSTEM AND STRUCTURE

Essays in Communication and Exchange

Anthony Wilden

This brilliantly argued critique of biological and human communication employs an ecosystemic approach to expose the ideological function of theory in supporting the oppression of modern society, and, at the same time, attempts a human theory of social and natural relations. £6.90

THE RULES OF THE GAME

Cross-disciplinary Essays on Models in Scholarly Thought

Edited by Teodor Shanin

Explorations by a distinguished group representing the natural and social sciences, mathematics, history, linguistics, and theology, of common conceptual and methodological issues in contemporary scholarship. £4.90

The Figurae of Joachim of Fiore

Marjorie Reeves and Beatrice Hirsch-Reich

By a strange coincidence two manuscripts of the lost Liber figurarum of Joachim of Fiore were discovered within the same decade, one in Italy and the other in Oxford. They are in many ways a unique expression of the medieval imagination, the work of an artist and mystic who endeavoured to express the mysteries of the Trinity and the patterns of history in rich and strange visual forms. This book traces this evolution and unravels the complexities of their interpretation. 25 plates 10 text figures £10 Oxford Warburg Studies

Philosophy and Political Action

Essays edited for the New York Group of the Society for Philosophy and Public Affairs

Edited by Virginia Held, Kai Nielsen, and Charles Parsons

These essays as a whole reflect the large and growing interest in philosophical consideration of the fundamental moral and political problems confronting American society. The aim of the editors has been to provide a short book for reading in introductory philosophy courses as well as in ethics and political philosophy. Paper covers £1.40 OUP New York

Hegel's Philosophy of Right

Translated with notes by T. M. Knox

Paper covers £1 Galaxy Books OUP New York

Interpreting Modern Philosophy

James Collins

The author probes the meaning and methods of historical interpretation in philosophy by analysing the creative reciprocity between the modern source thinkers—from Descartes and Locke to Mill and Nietzsche—and their mid-twentieth-century interpreters. £7 paper covers £3.75 Princeton University Press

Mind: An Essay on Human Feeling
Volume II

Susanne K Langer

In the second volume of her widely acclaimed philosophical treatise Susanne Langer considers the 'great shift' to human mental life which is epitomized in the notion of 'mind'. She uses the wealth of information on animal behaviour provided by ethologists, especially field workers, to show how the amazing gulf between beast and man could develop in the course of evolution without breaking the continuity of life.

Susanne K. Langer, Professor Emeritus of Philosophy, and currently research scholar, at Connecticut College, is the author of Philosophy in a New Key, Feeling and Form and Philosophical Sketches (Johns Hopkins, 1962).

From reviews of Mind: An Essay on Human Feeling, Volume I 'No contemporary philosopher has combed the literature of the sciences more painstakingly and interpreted it with greater insight.'—Science. 'Mind, Volume I is an extremely significant and brilliant work.'—Philosophical Studies

416 pages £5.95

The Existential Experience

Ralph Harper

Existentialism, like life itself, has both affirmative and negative options. Ralph Harper's new book interprets modern man's emptiness, his self-isolation, and his redemptive sense of Presence. It is an American existentialist's summary of the existential tradition from St Augustine and Pascal to Heidegger and Camus. But it is much more. It is a very personal statement, an insider's view of a philosophy of man that has come of age in the twentieth century and that speaks most directly to the philosophical, religious, and psychological questions of our age. Ralph Harper is Rector of St James Church in Monkton, Maryland. A Guggenheim Fellow, he is also lecturer in the humanities at The Johns Hopkins University.

The Varieties of Belief

PAUL HELM

This study questions the idea, implicit in much philosophy of religion, that philosophically important conclusions can be derived from 'what the believer says' or by an appeal to the 'grammar' of religious language. Of particular interest is the author's comparison between Kant and Wittgenstein.

Kant on Absolute Value

P. AE. HUTCHINGS

This book provides a fresh and radical analysis of Kant's arguments in the earlier parts of the Groundwork of the Metaphysic of Morals and rectifies serious errors in Kant's ontology of personal value. Salvaged from Kant's metaphysic there appears the notion of the Person as End-in-Himself, a valuable idea of wider implications.

Journal of Moral Education

Edited by Derek Wright

Moral Education as a study and pursuit in its own right has come to the fore in recent years. This is not just as an alternative to religious education but as a reflection of the need for a dynamic aspect to education which will fit a child for the heavy demands of modern changing society.

The Journal of Moral Education provides an important communication between the workers in various branches of the subject. Articles include empirical studies of moral attitudes and behaviour; discussions of the ideas of morality and of the ends and means of moral education; and reviews of educational policy and organisation. There are reports on research and curriculum development projects, book reviews and evaluative surveys of curriculum material.

Finally in a sensitive area, the Journal of Moral Education follows prevailing educational practice in being without any preconceived notions of one particular preferred moral code. The Editorial Board represents a wide range of ultimate convictions, but finds common ground in the present area of concern.

The journal is published three times a year. Volume 2 Number 1 is now available. The subscription rate is £4.50 for libraries and other multi-reader institutions and £2.50 to individuals. Subscriptions or enquiries (FREE descriptive brochure available on request) to: Pemberton Publishing Co. Ltd., 88 Islington High Street, London N1 8EN. Tel. 01-226 7251.

Perception, Sensation, and Verification

Bede Rundle

For anyone who argues that a proposition can be genuinely factual only if we can recognize when it is true or false, a considerable problem is posed by the difficulty of telling what another person is thinking or feeling. Mr Rundle first examines the validity of this argument and then proceeds to a detailed analysis of perception and sensation, both animal and human. £3.50

Insight and Illusion

Wittgenstein on Philosophy and the Metaphysics of Experience

P. M. S. Hacker

The central theme of this book concerns Wittgenstein's metaphysics of experience: the problems of self-consciousness, knowledge of other minds, and knowledge of objects. The secondary concern is Wittgenstein's general conception of philosophy and metaphysics. The Kantian affinities of Wittgenstein's philosophy are stressed, and the two main subjects are examined against the backcloth of his semantic theories. £4.25

The Manifold in Perception

Theories of Art from Kant to Hildebrand

Michael Podro

It was Schiller, the author argues, who provided what is still the most comprehensive and flexible vision of how the arts function within our mental life. He gives an exposition and analysis of the texts of Schiller and Kant, and discusses a number of other theories for the first time in English and in the context of contemporary philosophy. 8 plates £3.25 Oxford Warburg Studies

The Concept of a Legal System

An Introduction to the Theory of Legal System

Joseph Raz

Three problems are explored in this study: What does it mean to assert or deny the existence of a legal system? How can one determine whether a given law belongs to a certain legal system? What kind of structure do legal systems have, that is, what necessary relations obtain between their laws? £2.25

Oxford University Press

LOGIC MATTERS

P. T. GEACH

Professor Geach here brings together almost all his English articles previously published and not already collected in other books. Except in the case of one article, few changes have been made.

CARTESIAN STUDIES

Edited by R. J. BUTLER

This volume of essays has grown out of two 'workshops' on Descartes held at the University of Waterloo in 1968. The first four papers and the sixth were delivered then, the other three being added subsequently. Each deals with a separate topic and provides an independent and important contribution to existing work on Descartes.
