ETHNOARCHAEOLOGY

Implications of Ethnography for Archaeology

CAROL KRAMER, EDITOR. Reflecting a variety of current approaches to questions of broad anthropological interest, the contributors to this unique volume provide the first comprehensive documentation of how far the systematic study of human behavior can illuminate and extend the archaeological record. Case studies are drawn from societies of varying organizational complexity—in South America, Mesoamerica, Europe, Southwest Asia, and Africa—and illustrate relationships between selected aspects of behavior and their material correlates. 320 pages, Illus., $20.00

ANALYTICAL ARCHAEOLOGY

Second Edition

DAVID L. CLARKE AND ROBERT CHAPMAN. The Times Literary Supplement praised the first edition of Analytical Archaeology in 1968, saying, "one might venture that this is the most important archaeological work for twenty or thirty years, and it will undoubtedly influence several future generations of archaeologists." With publication of the second, revised edition, Analytical Archaeology remains the classic statement of the need for order and regularity within archaeology. 548 pages, Illus., $25.00

ACTS OF THE INTERNATIONAL SYMPOSIUM ON ROCK ART

SVERRE MARSTRANDER, EDITOR. These richly illustrated articles explore numerous examples of rock art sites in Europe, Australia, and North America and address such problems as dating techniques and methods of analysis. The collection is a result of a symposium on prehistoric rock art which was held in Hankø, Norway. Six of the eighteen papers are in German. A Universitetsforlaget book 248 pages, Illus., $16.00

THE USTINOV COLLECTION

Terracottas

ILONA SKUPINSKA LØVSET. A supplement to The Ustinov Collection: The Palestinian Pottery, this volume describes terracottas dating from the Late Bronze Age to the Arab period. Describing each item in a catalog format, the author focuses on the cultural-historical and ethnological questions that the objects raise. Several new types appear here for the first time, and views presented in the earlier volume are extended and refined. A Universitetsforlaget book 140 pages, Illus., $18.00 paper

Announcing Two Volumes in the STUDIES IN ARCHAEOLOGY Series . . .

THE BASIN OF MEXICO

Ecological Processes in the Evolution of a Civilization

By WILLIAM T. SANDERS, JEFFREY R. PARSONS and ROBERT S. SANTLEY

A study of one of the most impressive human achievements—the evolution of pre-Hispanic civilization in the Basin of Mexico—this work synthesizes fifteen years of field research in archaeology, ethnohistory, ethnography, and geography. It describes in detail the changing patterns of settlement in the Basin of Mexico from its occupation by sedentary farmers about 3,500 years ago up until the time of the Spanish conquest. Major sociopolitical, economic, and locational transformations are analyzed from a cultural materialist point of view. This regional perspective provides a basis for testing the utility of theories of cultural ecological theory for explaining the evolution of complex societies.

CONTENTS: The Strategy and Tactics of Fieldwork. The Settlement Pattern Maps. The Natural Environment of the Basin of Mexico. Settlement History of the Basin of Mexico. Demographic History of the Basin of Mexico. Resource Exploitation. The Village and Institutional Evolution in the Basin of Mexico. Theoretical Implications of the Basin of Mexico Survey. The Basin of Mexico and Future Research. Appendixes: Site Survey Form. Field Survey Form. The Ceramic Sequence of the Basin of Mexico. Prehispanic Meat Consumption Levels in the Basin of Mexico. Sampling Strategies and Surface Survey in the Basin of Mexico.

TRANSFORMATIONS Mathematical Approaches to Culture Change

Edited by COLIN RENFREW and KENNETH L. COOKE

Transformations represents a pioneer attempt to rethink the application of mathematical techniques to the study of the development of human societies. The editors, an archaeologist and a mathematician, have brought together the contributions of leading anthropologists, mathematicians, historians, archaeologists, and theoretical biologists, all of whom utilize mathematical concepts and methods to deepen our understanding of culture change in prehistoric and more recent societies.

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE AWARD

The Society for American Archaeology announces the establishment of a Distinguished Service Award, to recognize among its members specific accomplishments of extraordinary quality. The Award will be presented at the Annual Business Meeting of the Society to a member whose professional career has resulted in a genuine and lasting contribution to archaeology and, in addition, whose specific accomplishments can be recognized as clearly outstanding.

Recognition can be granted in a wide range of areas relating to archaeology, including, for example, teaching (academic as well as public education), research (theory, method, application of new technology, analysis, etc.), and conservation of archaeological data (curatorial, legal, managerial), as long as two basic criteria are met. First, the contribution must be truly extraordinary (not expected in the normal course of events) and must be recognized widely as such; second, it must be of a positive and lasting quality.

The Society encourages recommendations from the membership for potential recipients of the award. Each recommendation should be supported by a 500-word statement documenting concisely and thoroughly the achievements of the nominee. The deadline for receiving recommendations is October 1, 1979. Mail to W. James Judge, Chairman, DSA Committee, Department of Anthropology, University of New Mexico, Albuquerque, NM 87131.
