Population and Social Structure

Marriage and Remarriage in Populations of the Past edited by J. Dupaquier, E. Helin, P. Loslett, M. Livi-Bacci and S. Sogner

May/June 1981, c. 600pp., £30.00 (UK only) / $72.00, 0.12.224660.8

This book is the published proceedings of a Colloquium on Historical Demography held in Kristiansand, Norway in September 1979, and organized by the IUSSP and ICHS. It is the first work to be devoted to the historical study of remarriage, considering aspects such as age of partners at remarriage, laws and customs of the society and the matrimonial market.

A.S.A. Monograph No. 20

The Structure of Folk Models

edited by Ladislav Holy and Milan Stuchlik
January 1981, x + 370pp., £12.50 (UK only) / $30.00, 0.12.353750.9

People's own concepts of their actions, their reasons and explanations for them, and more generally, the whole range of their own notions about the social and natural world in which they live are central to anthropological analysis and explanation. A society's comprehension of itself or its "folk model" forms an integral part of its social order and, further, this social order cannot be sociologically explained unless native comprehension is seen as the basic set of data for such an explanation.

The Revolutionary Origins of Modern Japan

Thomas M. Huber. Challenging the popular view of the Meiji Restoration as a “revolution from above,” this book argues that its main cause was neither the growing threat of the West nor traditional loyalty to Emperor and nation, but rather lay in class conflict and long-term institutional change. The author sees the Restoration as a revolution against feudal privilege carried out from below by a service intelligentsia of minor administrators, priests, scholars, and village officials. The book focuses on the politically most effective body of activists, those in the domain of Choshu, and on their most important leaders of the 1850’s and 1860’s: Yoshida Shoin, Kusaka Genzui, and Takasugi Shinsaku. A final chapter explains various heretofore puzzling aspects of the Meiji period (1868–1912) in terms of its revolutionary origins, and concludes by showing that the Restoration, far from being uniquely Japanese, had many of the characteristics we associate with the great revolutions of England, France, and Russia. $19.50

Victorian Women

A Documentary Account of Women’s Lives in Nineteenth-Century England, France, and the United States

Edited by Erna Olafson Hellerstein, Leslie Parker Hume & Karen M. Offen. A vivid sense of what it meant to be a woman during the Victorian era emerges from this collection of more than 200 historical documents, drawn from three different but related Western cultures. The book is divided into four parts reflecting the female life cycle, and covers many social classes and geographical settings. The documents deal with such topics as child rearing, education, religious experience, courtship, marriage, motherhood, friendship, prostitution, and reform work. They derive from a wide range of material, including diaries, letters, autobiographies, poetry, medical records, wills, tombstone inscriptions, games, household budgets, etiquette manuals, and the writings of nineteenth-century social scientists. Many of these documents have never before been published or translated into English. Cloth, $27.50; paper, $11.95

THEORY and SOCIETY

Renewal and Critique in Social Theory

Editors: Rod Aya,
Anthony Giddens,
Erving Goffman,
Martin Jay,
Jerome Karabel,
Theda Skocpol,
Sharon Zukin

Theory and Society is an undogmatic, bi-monthly journal of the social sciences, produced by a worldwide fellowship of scholars who seek, through synthesis of sociology and marxism, to deepen understanding of the 'present as history' and to renew critical social theory. It is published for critical sociologists, independent marxists, and for other unpacified intellectuals and endangered species. Produced by scholars unencumbered by academic fences or by political piety, we write for those creating their own intellectual vision without buying packaged tours of the social world.

Theory and Society is a critic of both normal sociology and normal marxism. We are dismayed by academic sociology's propensity to become an administrative instrument of state policy, and by many marxists' complicity in oppression. For example, by the Cambodian government's brutalization of its own people, Vietnamese invasion of Cambodia, Chinese invasion of Vietnam, not to speak of the Soviet Union's invasions of Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Afghanistan. Theory and Society is published by and for those who see no reason to choose between dinosaurs.

Theory and Society works to keep sociology and marxism open to one another, seeking to stimulate and to husband social theory's great traditions. Preserving the viable work of Max Weber, Emile Durkheim, and Karl Marx, we also develop them in creative directions suggested (for example) by Antonio Gramsci, Barrington Moore, C. Wright Mills, Max Horkheimer, Eric Hobsbawm, Jürgen Habermas, Michel Foucault, and Raymond Williams. Rather than the partisan of some special theory, then, Theory and Society is the guardian of a larger theoretic culture. Subsidized neither by professional associations, universities, nor private benefactors, Theory and Society has grown only because it publishes work of excellence and interest to its readers.

REVIEW

a journal of the
Fernand Braudel
Center for the Study of Economies,
Historical Systems,
and Civilizations

Editor: Immanuel Wallerstein

Review is committed to the pursuit of a perspective which recognizes the primacy of analysis of economies over long historical time and large space, the holism of the socio-historical process, and the transitory (heuristic) nature of theories.

The contents of Volume IV (1980-81) include:

Janos M. Bak	Serfs and Serfdom: Words and Things
Henri Lefebvre	Marxism Exploded
Marian Malowist	Merchant Credit and the Putting-Out System in Rural Production During the Middle Ages
Walter Rodney	Plantation Society in Guyana
Special issue on	“Chicano Labor and Uneven Development”
Debates on	“Scotland and Africa” “Civilizations and their Declines”

Comparative Studies in Society and History is a forum for presentation and discussion of new research into problems of change and stability that recur in human societies through time or in the contemporary world. It sets up a working alliance between specialists in all branches of the social sciences and humanities. Debate and review articles bring the general reader in touch with current findings and issues.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Contributions may be descriptive, analytical or theoretical. Any article not in itself comparative may be accepted if it lends itself to comment that will place it in comparative perspective. Correspondence with the editors prior to the submission of articles will help to enable them to obtain such comment or a companion study. Emphasis in comparative studies may be either on similarities or, if these are significant enough and call for some recasting of generalizations, on differences. All contributions and editorial correspondence should be sent to the Editors, Comparative Studies in Society and History, Department of History, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48109.

Two copies of each contribution, preferably accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope, should be submitted. Both text and footnotes should be clearly typed with double spacing and wide margins; footnotes should appear on separate pages at the end of the article. Illustrations may be included by arrangement with the editors.

Contributors will receive 50 offprints. Any additional offprints must be ordered on receipt of the first proof.
