Introduction to Foreign Legal Systems

Richard A. Danner and
Marie-Louise H. Bernal, Editors

♦ 1994 ♦ ISBN:0-379-21350-8 ♦ 456 pgs.

$85.00

Introduction to Foreign Legal Systems, the valuable new work from the American Association of Law Libraries (AALL) and Oceana Publications, has been designed specifically with you in mind.

This is a text written by subject area specialists, it is not a collection of proceedings! Introduction to Foreign Legal Systems is the outgrowth from the first AALL/Oceana research institute (Winter '93)*. It provides in-depth analysis and expert guidance on accessing information. You will now be able to locate the right resources easily and skillfully.

Topics include:

- | | |
|---|---|
| ♦ Comparing Legal Systems | ♦ African Legal Systems |
| ♦ Resources for foreign law researchers | ♦ Asian Legal Systems |
| ♦ Foreign Law Collection Building
(including translation problems/sources &
acquisition of materials from difficult jurisdictions) | ♦ Civil Law Systems
(including France & Mexico) |

* In an effort to provide law librarians with instruction on foreign legal systems and legal research in foreign, comparative and international law, the AALL and Oceana have just concluded three in a series of five co-sponsored institutes. Texts from each institute are being co-published by the AALL and Oceana. This series is an essential for anyone building or completing an international collection of legal materials, or needs source information or expert guidance on research techniques. Introduction to Foreign Legal Systems, the first institute's publication is being met with critical acclaim by law librarians nationwide. Look for the forthcoming publications from the second and third institutes: Introduction to International Organizations (Summer '93) and Transnational Legal Transactions (Summer '94); and mark your calendar for the fourth research institute which will focus its attention on international taxation and business, to be held July 1995 in Philadelphia, PA.

UNILEX: UN CONVENTION ON CONTRACTS FOR THE INTERNATIONAL SALE OF GOODS

A comprehensive and "intelligent" database containing all the internationally rendered case law, together with an extensive bibliography and status of the Convention on Contracts for the International Sale of Goods (CISG).

What Does UNILEX Offer You?

- the text of the Convention;
- all the cases so far reported in the different countries;
- the cases inserted both in the form of an abstract in English summarizing the essential elements of the decision and also in their original version;
- an extensive Bibliography on the Convention listing 1000 monographs and articles so far on the Convention published in English, French, German, Italian and Spanish.

An "Intelligent" Database, UNILEX:

- permits retrieval of the cases not only chronologically and country-by-country, but also under the specific issues considered in the case; in particular:
 - for each article of the Convention there is a list of the various issues likely to arise and all the cases dealing with that issue;
 - for those not familiar with the Convention, access to the cases is possible through the analytical index composed of over 800 references;

Compiled and updated under the supervision of M.J. Bonnell, Director of the Centre for Comparative and Foreign Studies.
