Art, Tea, and Industry

Masuda Takashi and the Mitsui Circle

Christine M. E. Guth

Christine Guth examines the intimate relationship between art collecting, the tea ceremony, and business through the activities of Masuda Takashi (1848-1938), the highly charismatic director of the Mitsui conglomerate, whose opulent life and passionate pursuit of art continue to influence new generations of aspiring business magnates in Japan.

"There is nothing of the kind available in any Western language, nor, indeed, in Japanese that treats with such insight Japan's awakening to the value of its own artistic heritage. Christine Guth has made available here a fresh kind of cultural history. . . ."—Thomas Rimer, University of Pittsburgh

Strategic Capitalism

Private Business and Public Purpose in Japan

Kent E. Calder

Was Japan's economic miracle generated primarily by the Japanese state or by the nation's dynamic private sector? In addressing this question, Kent Calder's richly detailed study offers a distinctive reinterpretation of Japanese government-business relations. Calder challenges popular opinion to demonstrate how Japanese private enterprise has complemented the state in achieving the national purpose of industrial transformation.

"This is the most important book dealing with industrial policy in Japan since Chalmers Johnson's MITI and the Japanese Miracle."—Edward J. Lincoln, The Brookings Institution

Retirement of Revolutionaries in China

Public Policies, Social Norms, Private Interests

Melanie Manion

Beginning in 1978 Chinese leaders in Beijing replaced millions of old cadres with younger generations of better educated officials. How were the elders persuaded to retire? Melanie Manion shows how a norm of age-based exit from office was engineered by top policymakers and aided by younger cadres. Her research combined a wide variety of sources and methods, many new to the study of Chinese politics. The result is a rich portrayal of manipulative leadership in post-Mao China, which reveals the key role of the private interests of all the parties involved.

"... a major contribution to Chinese studies. . . ."
