

STATE AND INTELLECTUAL IN IMPERIAL JAPAN

The Public Man in Crisis

ANDREW E. BARSHAY

A superbly written narrative that illuminates the complex predicament of modern Japanese intellectuals and their relation to the state and society. Barshay's work is ultimately a study of intellectual mobilization in a modern state, and of the price of national identity in the twentieth century.

"Deftly written and eminently readable, this book sets a high standard of excellence in the field of modern Japanese intellectual history."

ROOTS OF NORTH INDIAN SHI'ISM IN IRAN AND IRAQ

Religion and State in Awadh, 1722-1859

J. R. I. COLE

In this pioneering study of the Twelver Shi'i branch of Islam prevalent in Iraq and Iran, Cole traces the influence of Shi'i rule on the development of religious communalism and conflict in the North Indian State of Awadh (Oudh). He also examines the relationship of the Shi'i clergy to the state and the clerical reaction to British imperialism and capitalism. $38.00

A SHARE OF THE HARVEST

Kinship, Property and Social History

Among the Malays of Rembau

MICHAEL G. PELETZ

The inhabitants of the Malaysian state of Negeri Sembilan have long fascinated and baffled outside observers. They are Muslims yet they have matrilineal clans, and both houses and land tend to be owned and inherited by women. In the face of British rule, modern market forces and Islamic nationalism, the Malays of the Rembau district of Negeri Sembilan have succeeded, to a surprising extent, in retaining many features of their matrilineality. This book examines persistence and change in the social organization of these Malays in the period from 1830 to 1980. $45.00

The Indian Journal of Social Science

Editor-in-Chief: SUKHAMOY CHAKRAVARTY
Delhi School of Economics, Delhi

The problems of development and social change, the interface between science, society, culture and technology, and a comprehension of future patterns of development are only a few of the problems concerning social scientists today. With a view to disseminating analytical discussion and research findings on these themes and issues, the Indian Council of Social Science Research has launched The Indian Journal of Social Science.

The major purpose of the Journal is to articulate rigorous scientific discussion on the diverse concerns of social science research — from comparative research, innovative approaches and the analysis and implications of accepted paradigms and their alternatives, to the understanding of the diverse and complex social and economic issues facing developing countries. Multi-disciplinary in approach, the Journal will periodically undertake an appraisal of social science research and provide for a closer interaction between the social sciences and policy-making.

The Indian Journal of Social Science is published quarterly. Two issues a year are thematic. 'Teaching and Research in the Social Sciences' is the theme of the first issue published in March 1988.

The Indian Economic and Social History Review

Editor: DHARMA KUMAR, Delhi School of Economics, Delhi

The Indian Economic and Social History Review offers scholars a major forum for an interdisciplinary study of the social and economic history of India. Articles published in this journal also cover other Asian countries and provide comparative perspectives with a wider geographic spread. The journal occasionally publishes special issues which explore single topics. In addition to research articles, the book review section often contains substantial review articles. Bibliographic surveys, which also cover material available in Indian languages, are a special feature.

The Journal has established itself as indispensable reading for anyone concerned with the history, economy and society of India, and is of interest to those concerned with world development and history in general.

The Indian Economic and Social History Review is published quarterly in March, June, September and December.

Recent articles published in IESHR include:

- The Jewish diaspora in India: eighth to thirteenth centuries ANDRE WINK
The forgotten sector: services in Madras Presidency in the first half of the nineteenth century DHARMA KUMAR
A dominant class in upheaval: the zamindars of a North Indian region in the late seventeenth and early eighteenth centuries R P RANA
The share of mansabdars in state revenue resources: a study of the maintenance of animals K K TRIVEDI
Land transactions as seen in the Draksharama inscriptions M KRISHNA KUMARI

Contributions to Indian Sociology

Editor: T N MADAN, Institute of Economic Growth, Delhi

Contributions to Indian Sociology is the pre-eminent forum for the presentation of research material on Indian and South Asian societies and cultures and for the discussion of different approaches to their study. This journal publishes neither purely theoretical essays nor purely ethnographic accounts but favours papers in which data and theory are mutually related. Occasionally papers dealing with themes of cross-civilisational significance, bringing in data from non-South Asian societies are also published.

Contributions to Indian Sociology is an indispensable and highly regarded forum for the understanding of South Asian society, culture and religion and provides theoretical insights applicable to the study of other developing societies as well.

Contributions to Indian Sociology is published biannually in May and November.

Contributions to Indian Sociology has also brought out two thematic issues:

SOUTH ASIA JOURNAL

A Journal of the Indian Council for South Asian Cooperation

Editor-in-Chief: BIMAL PRASAD
Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi

South Asia Journal has been launched by the Indian Council for South Asian Cooperation to explore themes and issues of vital national and regional concern for South Asian countries. The time is ripe for the countries of South Asia (Bangladesh, Bhutan, India, the Maldives, Nepal, Pakistan and Sri Lanka) to harness the powerful impulses of mutual cooperation and understanding inherent in their geography, culture, economy and historical evolution to assert themselves in the constructive reshaping of regional prospects. The irrationality of conflicts and tensions has held an unduly long and debilitating sway over the affairs of the region.

South Asia Journal aims to generate serious debate through in-depth and objective analyses presented from various perspectives by scholars, intellectuals and policy-makers both from within and without the region. The major purpose of such debate is to enhance mutual understanding and appreciation of each others' potentialities and problems, so as to build a sound infrastructure for regional cooperation and harmony.

South Asia Journal is published quarterly in July, October, January and April.

NOTES TO CONTRIBUTORS

Modern Asian Studies is concerned with the history, geography, politics, sociology, literature, economics and social anthropology of South Asia, South-East Asia, China and Japan. Contributions should be based on original research or field-work.

All articles (text, notes and references) must be clearly typed in double spacing throughout on one side only of the paper—preferably A4. Two copies should be submitted. Spelling, dates, references and footnote numbers should be checked for accuracy. The use of diacritical marks, italics and capital letters should be kept to a minimum. References repeated in the footnotes should be by author and short title; or the Harvard system of citation may be used.

The title of the article and the author's name and affiliation should be typed on a separate page at the beginning of the article.

Tables should be clearly laid out and numbered consecutively. Vertical lines between columns should be omitted. All figures and totals should be checked for accuracy.

Maps and figures should be clearly legible in every detail. The spelling of place names should be consistent with that used in the text.

Every table, map and figure should have a title and at least one reference in the text to indicate its location.

First proofs only will be sent to the author who will be expected to return them to the Editor within three days. Excessive alterations and additions may be charged to the author.

Each author will receive twenty-five free offprints of his article and a copy of the part of the journal in which it appears.

Submission of an article will be taken to imply that it has not been previously published and that it is not on offer to any other publisher. In the interests of authors, copyright is normally assigned to Cambridge University Press. The editor welcomes expression of all shades of opinion, but responsibility for them rests with their authors.

All correspondence should be addressed to Dr Gordon Johnson, Selwyn College, Cambridge CB3 9DG, England.
