This thirteenth volume of the Annual Review of Applied Linguistics, like the preceding volumes which were published beginning in 1981, is respectfully dedicated to the many professional Applied Linguists who were involved in helping to launch and sustain this publication; to those who have helped to formulate the framework for this and the previous volumes; to those who have generally contributed to the series, and to all Applied Linguists and their students who, hopefully, will reap some benefit from its existence.

PUBLISHER'S NOTE

The current issue of the Annual Review of Applied Linguistics, Volume 13, 1992, was published in early 1993 and will be the last issue using the cover dating system established at the journal's founding. Initially the cover date was intended to reflect the fact that ARAL primarily covered the preceding year's research in applied linguistics. However, as ARAL volumes often cover issues of continuing topical interest and do not put strict date limits on the literature reviewed, this is no longer appropriate. In addition, the fact that the volume for the current subscription carries the previous year's date may be confusing to subscribers.

The next two issues will be designated as follows:

Volume 14, 1993-1994
To be published in early 1994

Volume 15, 1995
To be published in early 1995, will begin the new dating system.
