NEWS and ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Southern Labor Studies Association is seeking proposals for presentation at the Southern Labor History Conference in the spring of 1980. The Conference will again bring together trade unionists, academicians, and others interested in the rise and development of organized labor in the South. The Association seeks to promote an interest in the Southern worker, to achieve a better understanding of labor's activities in the region from Texas to Maryland, and to encourage the preservation and use of the historical materials of union activity.

The program committee invites all persons to suggest sessions involving panel discussion, formal papers, or any other type of presentation relating to Southern Labor. Topics might include labor law and labor lawyers, women in the labor movement, blacks and labor, and labor and politics. The program committee will not be limiting its considerations to papers or other presentations on the above subjects, but will be making selections for the program based on the merits of the proposals themselves. Proposals must be submitted by September 15, 1979. Send proposals, or requests for further information, to: Dr. Leslie S. Hough, Secretary-Treasurer, Southern Labor Studies Association, Urban Life 1028, Georgia State University, Atlanta, Georgia 30303.

In particular, they invite suggestions for papers on social change and economic development in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries which focus on such themes as industrialization, resource development, political economy, class and community life, social movements, and culture and ideology. Offers and suggestions should be sent in before Summer 1979. All enquiries should be addressed to: Judith Fingard, Department of History, Dalhousie University, Halifax, Nova Scotia, B3H 3J5.

Denmark's Resistance Press. Studies of Denmark during the second World War are frequently hampered by the relative inaccessibility of documentary material. Understandably, this is particularly true of the underground press, which represents an essential historical and political source as a day-by-day picture of life in occupied Denmark. To help solve this problem, Antiquariat R. Levin & Co. ApS. is reprinting, in its entirety, the most important underground publication, Information.

Information was more than a newspaper. From August 1943 until Denmark's liberation in May 1945, Information was the daily news service which provided information for all underground newspapers in Denmark. Its speed and accuracy were unique in occupied Europe. Information's material was of such importance and reliability that its stories were frequently relayed to London by the underground radio and rebroadcast by the B.B.C. the same day they happened. Information's "fresh news from the other side of the front" played an important role in Allied psychological warfare and helped create special sympathy for Denmark in Great Britain. Information was also extensive. In twenty-one illegal months its five-man staff produced four million words. The present edition is expected to consist of 18 volumes of ca. 224 pages which will appear during the next 36 months. Due to the nature of the material, two additional volumes of separate name and place indices containing 25,000 references will represent a valuable tool for researchers.

The editors of the present edition, working in collaboration with the Danish Royal Library and the Museum of the Danish Underground, have succeeded in assembling a nearly complete edition of Information. Since the initial publication date is unknown and since Information was printed in only 12 copies during its first three months, some early gaps remain. The present edition is being printed in inverse chronological order in the hope that missing copies can be located and added in proof. Further information may obtained from the publishers, Antikvariat Richard Levin & Co ApS. Dannebrogsgade 1. 1600 København V.

Benjamin Barkas Papers. The Urban Archives Center at Temple University has finished processing the papers and records of Dr. Benjamin W. Barkas, chairman of the Labor Education Association and Adult Education Specialist for the School District of Philadelphia. This extensive collection illuminates the history of labor education in Philadelphia since the New Deal, the Philadelphia Labor College in the 1920s, the continuing education programs of the public schools for union members and others, and Barkas' interests as a professional educator, trade unionist, and community organizer for the period 1920 to 1970, total 50 cubic feet.

Samuel Gompers Papers. A project to collect and publish the papers of Samuel Gompers (1850-1924) is underway at the University of Maryland and Pace University. It is funded by the National Historical Publications and Records Commission. All the collected documents will be published in a comprehensive microfilm edition; the most significant papers will appear in a twelve to fifteen volume printed edition.

Gompers' papers are scattered throughout the country. Major collections are to be found at the AFL-CIO, the Library of Congress, the State Historical Society of Wisconsin, and the New York Public Library. The project has discovered smaller collections in many other repositories. The editors would welcome information regarding any letters to, from, or about Samuel Gompers. CRHMSS. Issue number two of the Bulletin du Centre de recherches des mouvements sociaux et du syndicalisme (CRHMSS) has appeared and is available from the CRHMSS, 9 rue Mahler, 75004 Paris. It contains, in addition to accounts of the activities of the Center itself, several extensive and important reports. One of them describes the conference at Mexico City, February 27 to March 3, 1978, at which the International Association of Centers for the Historical and Social Study of the Workers' Movement was established. The delegates in attendance represented research centers and historical societies in Italy, Ireland, Poland, the USSR, Bulgaria, the United States, Spain, the German Democratic Republic, France, and Mexico. Suarez Gaona, director of the Center of Historical and Social Studies of the Mexican Workers' Movement (CEHSMO) was elected president of the bureau of the International Association. Its vice-presidents are John Swift, Janusz Goliebowsky, Francesco Rettura, and Philip S. Foner.

Another report is an 80-page listing of memoirs and studies in French working-class history, or related to that field, which appeared in 1977-78. There is also a thorough survey of French trade union achives for the period 1944-1948. Those of the CGT, the CGT-FO, and the CFDT are discussed. Finally, there is a report on the survey of the activities of the national union of school teachers during the 1930's.
