THE ARCHAIC BANNERSTONE

Its Chronological History and Purpose from 6000 B.C. to 1000 B.C.

This exciting new book reveals for the first time the chronological sequence of the major bannerstone patterns in the central United States.

In addition, this 20 year study chronicles the development of the antler atlatl hook and marine shell gorget, identifies a previously unrecognized archaic mortuary trait named the "Three Atlatl Cache," suggests a more realistic purpose for the bannerstones, and offers many other interesting facts.

784 INDEX TO VOLUME 65

On the cover: The cover shows objects from the Locarno Beach culture type—a basket of split cedar withes recovered from a wet site in the Fraser Delta of southwestern British Columbia and three views of a barbed bone point made from an elk, or wapiti (Cervus elaphus), cannon bone from another site nearby. The Locarno Beach phase dates from 3400 to 2500 B.P. and is the first Northwest Coast culture to rely extensively on stored salmon. The basket and stratigraphic drawing are by Kathryn Bernick, and the point was drawn by Susan Matson.
