

Garland's Million; or, the Tragedy and Triumph of Legal History: American Society for Legal History Plenary Lecture, New Orleans, 2021 – CORRIGENDUM

JOHN FABIAN WITT

doi: 10.1017/S0738248022000013, Published by Cambridge University Press, 1 April 2022

On page 128 of this article,<sup>1</sup> the sentence “Risa Goluboff and Mark Tushnet cite it as ‘a cautionary example’ and charge it with imposing undue limits on conceptions of race equality” misattributes the phrase “cautionary example” to Goluboff and Tushnet. It was written by Gloria Samson and appears at page xiv of the book Gloria Garrett Samson, The American Fund for Public Service: Charles Garland and Radical Philanthropy, 1922–1941 (Westport, CT: Greenwood Press, 1996). The sentence was intended to read as follows: “More recently, the Fund’s historians have been less generous, calling it ‘a cautionary example’ and charging it (as Risa Goluboff and Mark Tushnet do) with imposing undue limits on conceptions of race equality.”

REFERENCE

1. John Fabian Witt, “Garland’s Million; or, the Tragedy and Triumph of Legal History: American Society for Legal History Plenary Lecture, New Orleans, 2021,” Law and History Review 40 (2022): 123–147. doi:10.1017/S0738248022000013.