Human Rights of Women

National and International Perspectives

Edited by Rebecca J. Cook

The contributors to this volume analyze how international human rights law applies specifically to women in various cultures worldwide and develop strategies to promote equitable application of human rights law at the international, regional, and domestic levels. Their essays present a compelling mixture of reports and case studies from various regions in the world. A volume in the Pennsylvania Studies in Human Rights. 1994. 656 pp, 2 illus. Cloth, 3261-5, $54.95; paper, 1538-9, $21.95

Educating for Human Dignity

Learning About Rights and Responsibilities

Betty Reardon

Written by one of the foremost scholars on human rights education at the primary and secondary levels, Educating for Human Dignity is the first curriculum resource manual to guide teachers and teachers-in-training through the process of developing human rights education programs in elementary and high schools. A volume in Pennsylvania Studies in Human Rights. Spring 1995. 240 pp. Cloth, 3306-9, $48.95; paper, 1524-9, $24.95

Human Rights in Crisis

The International System for Protecting Rights During States of Emergency

Joan Fitzpatrick

Fitzpatrick offers the first systematic and comprehensive effort to examine the multifaceted system for monitoring human rights abuses during states of emergency. Unlike previous studies, this book does not focus on substantive norms governing crises, but rather on how those norms might best be implemented. Volume 19 in the Procedural Aspects of International Law Series. 1994. 280 pp. Cloth, 3238-0, $39.95

International Law is undergoing considerable expansion

Keep in touch with legal developments through publications from the United Nations. Under the U.N. Charter, the United Nations has a mandate in legal affairs 'to promote the judicial settlement of disputes between states and encourage the development and codification of International Law.'

Since its establishment in 1945, the United Nations has, and continues to play a leading role in the area of International Law, being involved in the creation and implementation of hundreds of multilateral agreements.

To this end, many permanent organs and Ad Hoc committees have been created to deal with international legal matters. Much of the work, published on a regular basis, covers the areas of:

INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS LAW

- East-West Joint Venture Contracts
- European Agreement concerning the International Carriage of Dangerous Goods
- Legal Guide on Drawing up International Contracts for the Construction of Industrial works

THE ENVIRONMENT AND NATURAL RESOURCES

- International Register of Potentially Toxic Chemicals (IRPTC Legal File)

THE BEST IN LAW

Self-Determination of Peoples

A Legal Reappraisal

A. Cassese

Which of the peoples currently claiming the right to self-determination have that right under international law? At what point does this political ideal turn into an international legal standard? This first comprehensive legal account asks how far self-determination is reshaping international relations and assesses the extent of its impact on traditional international institutions. 48187-2 Hardback about $89.95

Mutual Assistance in Criminal and Business Regulatory Matters

William C. Gilmore, Editor

This volume contains the basic international documents relating to the conditions under which one country will provide information, evidence and other forms of assistance to another both in the investigation and prosecution of criminal offenses, and in countering malpractice in the world's securities and futures markets.

United Nations Legal Order

Volumes 1 and 2

Oscar Schachter and Christopher Joyner, Editors

The purpose of these two volumes is to examine, explain and appraise contributions made by the United Nations system to international law and the law-creating process. The work assesses the effect UN institutions have had on the law-making process, and the extent to which that law has been accepted by and evidenced in contemporary state practice.

The Refugees Convention, 1951

The Travaux Préparatoires Analysed with a Commentary by Dr. Paul Weis

Paul Weis

This book provides the first authoritative commentary on Articles 2-37, in which the rights of refugees were also enshrined in 1951. These rights, as the commentary reveals, were determined in the light of the legal and political considerations of the small number of governments responsible for drafting the Convention. Both a commentator on the travaux préparatoires and a former refugee, Paul Weis' direct participation in the process that led to the adoption of the Convention by the United Nations in 1951 has enabled him to provide an invaluable guide to the understanding of the text.

The 1994 Proceedings of the American Society of International Law—a tour d'horizon of issues of interest to international law practitioners, academics, and officials.

Are you interested in Sovereignty? ...

Echoing the theme of the 1994 Annual Meeting, the Proceedings deal in substantial measure with "the transformation of sovereignty" as evidenced in continuing political, economic and legal developments during the period of accelerated transition with which the international community is grappling.

- New theoretical perspectives among international scholars
- The various entities that may demonstrate emergent "multiple tiers of sovereignty"—from nations-states themselves to various substate entities involving local autonomy arrangements to supranational entities such as the European Union
- International law aspects of the breakup of states
- And the question "The End of Sovereignty?" which brought together issues and conclusions on the overall theme of the 1994 Annual Meeting.

Provisional Remedies in International Commercial Arbitration

A Practitioner Handbook

Edited by Axel Bösch

Associate Editor Joanna Farnsworth

1994 · xii + 818 pages · Cloth $261.00 · ISBN 3-11-012377-0

This handbook brings together the experience of 33 experts from around the world on the law relating to interim proceedings in arbitration in their respective countries. The countries represented have been chosen for their significance as forums for arbitration or for their specific interim relief proceedings.

The content focuses on types of provisional remedies available from the arbitrator and from the court. Chapter I introduces the problems, risks, and applicable law, both national and non-national, in relation to provisional remedies in general; Chapter II presents reports from selected countries; and Chapter III presents the EC position.

Country reports include:

"International law has become central to community concerns." -ASIL President Edith Brown Weiss

It has become vital, not only to influential policymakers, leading academics, government officials, and diplomats, but to attorneys, corporate decision makers, students, and jurists located in towns large and small, across the country and throughout the world.

Benefits and Opportunities

The ASIL informs members through news and studies ... involves members through conferences, meetings, and research groups ... and helps members who have similar interests meet each other and work together through local networks and issue-specific groups.

UNIVERSITY OF ARIZONA COLLEGE OF LAW

MASTER OF LAWS IN INTERNATIONAL TRADE LAW

The University of Arizona College of Law, in cooperation with the National Law Center for Inter-American Free Trade, offers a graduate course of study leading to the degree of master of laws in international trade law.

This new LL.M. program is designed to provide candidates with the theoretical and practical knowledge required to understand current developments in the area of international trade and commercial law, particularly with regard to NAFTA and other Western Hemisphere free trade. The curriculum combines specialized course work in international trade law, international commercial law and similar courses with relevant courses from the College of Law's general curriculum, and with directed research and writing at the National Law Center. The current research/harmonization of laws projects of the National Law Center, a non-profit corporation founded in 1992 by Professor Boris Kozolchyk, include the development of an international electronic commercial registry, harmonization of NAFTA transportation and banking documentation, reciprocal recognition of foreign judgments, and enforcement of United States and Mexican environmental laws and regulations.

The full-time LL.M. program is open to J.D. graduates of law schools accredited by the American Bar Association and to graduates of accredited foreign law schools with strong academic credentials, demonstrated experience or interest in international law and fluency in English and either Spanish or Portuguese.
