The Poetics of Repetition in English and Chinese Lyric Poetry

Cecile Chu-chin Sun

“Unquestionably a work of the highest pedigree, The Poetics of Repetition in English and Chinese Lyric Poetry is the product of a lifetime of thought and decades of exhaustive research. Besides taking on board the observations of critics from around the world, Sun develops her own valuable theses, which she extricates from the material she studies rather than imposes them upon it.”—David E. Erotic Triangles

Sundanese Dance and Masculinity in West Java

Henry Spiller

“This is a highly original and illuminating study of Sundanese performing arts and gender ideology. Theoretically challenging and historically rich, Erotic Triangles frames men’s improvisational dance as the playful working out of gendered identity relations.”—Andrew N. Weintraub, University of Pittsburgh

Buddhism and Science

A Guide for the Perplexed

Donald S. Lopez Jr.

“This fascinating book provides a new way of understanding the various discussions of Buddhism and science that have taken place over the past 150 years. Lopez not only gives an account of the diverse claims made for the scientific credibility of Buddhism, but in the process offers deep insights into the complex relations among science, religion, and Western modernity.”

Ethnic Minorities and Regional Development in Asia

Reality and Challenges

Edited by Huhua Cao

The global development experience of the past century has shown that economic growth cannot be sustained without taking into consideration the struggle for minority rights. This volume argues for the support of an interdisciplinary discussion that aims to link studies surrounding the development of minorities in Asia.

Social Movements in China and Hong Kong

The Expansion of Protest Space

Edited by Gilles Guiheux and

Khun Eng Kuah-Pearce

This volume provides an account of how Chinese individuals, increasingly free from the constraints of the state, have to rely on their own efforts to support their well-being, and how, in certain circumstances, they must gather together and protest to defend their interests.

Responding to the West

Essays on Colonial Domination and Asian Agency

Edited by Hans Hägerdal

Historiography, gender, military studies, finance, and issues of race and class all feature in this wide-ranging account of the diversity of human relationships forged by the colonial presence. For all of its features of structural oppression, colonialism in Asia was not a one-way communicative process, as this volume demonstrates through its analysis of the ever-shifting roles of colonizer and colonized.

COLLECTING ASIA: East Asian Libraries in North America, 1868–2008

Peter X. Zhou, Editor

An essential book for all scholars of East Asia

Written by leading East Asia specialists, librarians, and scholars, Collecting Asia offers a fascinating look at the founding and development of twenty-five major East Asian libraries in North America. This unique volume provides us with a look at the events and people that shaped these collections. Through carefully documented histories, we are introduced to the pioneering figures—from collector-explorers to scholar-librarians—who were instrumental in bringing books and artifacts from Asia to North America. This history of acquisition provides remarkable insight into our cultural legacies.

East Asia libraries featured in this landmark volume include those of:

Library of Congress • Harvard University • University of California, Berkeley • Columbia University • Yale University • University of Michigan • Princeton University • University of Chicago • Cornell University • University of British Columbia • University of Washington • University of California, Los Angeles • Stanford University • University of Toronto • University of Pittsburgh • University of Hawaii • Indiana University • Ohio State University • University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign • University of Kansas • University of Pennsylvania • University of California, San Diego • Duke University • University of Minnesota • University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

Richly illustrated and engagingly written, Collecting Asia is a vital book for scholars, librarians, students, and anyone with an interest in Asia and the history behind these important collections.

Tattoo Three Novellas
Su Tong

"The three novellas collected here . . . are well selected and expertly translated . . . ["The Gardener's Art"] . . . is really a vehicle for exploring verbal harassment, snobbery, and paternal fecklessness in the eternal Chinese family and the neighborhoods hiding it . . . [In] "A Divorce Handbook" . . . the raw passions of Chinese divorce emerge more quickly and adroitly than in Ha Jin's Waiting. The tattoos in Su Tong's novella of that name evoke his fascination with fetishes and obsessions, but now with the narrative economy of a master storyteller who has a fine grasp of human psychology." — Jeffrey C. Kinkley in World Literature Today

Typhoon of Steel
Akira Yoshimura

An Okinawan Schoolboy's Quest for Martyrdom in the Battle of Okinawa

"Yoshimura, a master of irony, demonstrates how Okinawans had little sense of how expendable they were, not only in the eyes of the military command but also mainland Japanese. In fiction that is painfully close to fact, he describes the process whereby a teenager living in a remote island chain could be exhilarated at the sight of an armada of American warships, how he could long to be 'enshrined with the war heroes at Yasukuni Shrine in Tokyo' . . . Yoshimura's powerful novel reminds us that any effort to whitewash the past is futile, and that history, as Okinawans know better than most, is indelible." — The Japan Times

A Foreign Missionary on the Long March
The Unpublished Memoirs of Arnolis Hayman of the China Inland Mission
Edited with an introduction by Anne-Marie Brady

"This unique and moving book will shatter much of the Chinese Communist Party's founding myth: that the Long March of 1934-1936, during which Mao Zedong rose to supreme power, established the Party as a victorious fighting force that won the devotion of the peasants by its immaculate behaviour . . . Anne-Marie Brady . . . notes, wholly rightly, that 'Hayman's unpublished memoirs are a valuable corrective to these distortions of the past.'" — Jonathan Mirsky in the Hong Kong Economic Journal

A STORY OF VIET NAM

by Trương Bửu Lâm

is the first comprehensive history of Vietnam written in English. While not a conventional textbook, this work can provide a substantial reading material to students interested in Asian affairs. To the hyphenated Vietnamese, it represents a convenient reference tool to unveil the historical allusions, mythical hints, ethnic idiosyncrasies they encounter every day at home. This book will turn Vietnam as a War into Vietnam as a country and a culture.

New Research from AAS

Beating Devils and Burning Their Books: Views of China, Japan, and the West

Edited by Anthony E. Clark

This book considers several topics especially germane to today's social and intellectual climate. Is religio-cultural conflict innate in religious belief? Is "difference" necessarily an antecedent of conflict? And on a purely expository level, how have governments, intellectuals, and religious devotees represented Asia or the West—and how did they distort those images in order to present diminutive representations of "the Other"? Following works such as Edward Said's Orientalism and John Dower's War Without Mercy, this important volume seeks to continue dialogue regarding how China, Japan, and the West have historically viewed and represented each other, and, more importantly, it considers how we might strive to discard pejorative images that still persist. This book will appeal to broad interests and disciplines, suitable for both graduate and undergraduate courses wherein active discussion on cultural interactions between Asia and the West can be facilitated.

EAST ASIAN HISTORY: A Tripolar Approach and ANCIENT KOREA-JAPAN RELATIONS: Paekche and the Origin of the Yamato Dynasty

(Kudara: 2010)

by Wontack Hong, Professor Emeritus, Seoul National University

that were reviewed as

"His most important contribution to the field so far is the fresh two-volume set comprising one volume on the general history of East Asia and the other on the specific sphere of issues connected with the protohistorical relations between Korea and Japan. These books deserve special recognition not only for their insightful approach but also for their elegant design, with high-quality color pictures, maps, and extracts from primary sources integrated in the whole in a reader-friendly way.

The first of the two volumes is essentially a handbook of East Asian political and cultural history, chronologically arranged, and with a focus on Manchuria, historiographically the most neglected component of the tripolar complex. ... By the "tripolar approach" he means that East Asia should not be viewed from the traditional Sinocentric perspective (= the monopolar approach), nor in a framework involving China and "the unified nomads in the steppe" (= the bipolar approach), but, rather, in terms of a system of interaction between three actors of equal weight, but with different roles: China, Mongolia, and Manchuria. This is a holistic framework conceptualized by Gari Ledyard and Thomas Barfield (as well as by the present author), and as a model for understanding East Asian history it does not seem to have alternatives. Even so, much research is still being done on East Asia in the spirit of obsolete paradigms, which is why Hong's two books certainly serve a purpose as a healthy reminder of how things can also be seen. ... that make the reading of Hong's books so refreshing.

The second volume by Hong is more strictly focused on the protohistorical period, though it also has a modern political dimension. The principal objective of the book is to bring forth evidence in favor of the "Kudara-Yamato model," according to which the immediate origins of Yamato Japan were located in Paekche. The evidence itself is generally well known, extending from historical records to obvious cultural and archaeological parallels, but the problem is that the relevant facts have never been recognized by the Japanese national historiography. This forces Hong to criticize "the claustrophobic narrowness of the Japanese academic tradition" as a whole, a criticism that is certainly justified at least as far as the fields of archaeology and history are concerned. ... The role of Paekche in the early history of Japan is beyond any doubt. ... The political and military ties between Paekche and Yamato suggest an intimate partnership that is best explained by assuming an ethnic affinity. Hong must be right when he claims that "a member of the Paekche royal family carried out the conquest of the Yamato region in the late fourth century," thus laying the foundations of Japan as a political state. Much of Hong's book is devoted to the summarizing of the archaeological, historical, folkloric, and even onomastic evidence in favor of this claim. ... Hong's two books are, in general, much better argued than anything presented by Japanese historians or even linguists during the recent decades."

Key Issues in Asian Studies

Japan and Imperialism, 1853–1945

James L. Huffman

"James Huffman offers a lucid chronological account of Japan's experience first as a target and then as an increasingly committed practitioner of imperialism. He provides an eminently accessible and richly illustrated narrative, with due attention to key interpretive issues, that is wonderfully suited for classroom use. An especially attractive feature of the work is the way each chapter opens with a personal vignette of a victim, a critic, or an agent of imperialism and its effects—giving a tangible, human form to one of the defining forces that shaped modern Japan and its international relations through World War II."

TODAY

Formed in 1941, the AAS is a scholarly, non-political, and non-profit professional association open to all persons interested in Asia and the study of Asia.

Integrating Technology and Design with Humanities to Impact the Future.

Challenge the next generation of technically grounded leaders with the infinite possibilities of Humanities, Arts and Social Sciences.

The Singapore University of Technology and Design (SUTD) is positioned to be the first university in the world to integrate the concept of design and innovation as a common thread in research and engineering. SUTD plans to attract and groom the very best faculty, staff and students to create an environment that will propel the University to become an intellectual hub and engine of growth for Singapore, Asia and the world.

Established in collaboration with the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT), SUTD is tasked with the advancement of knowledge and the nurturing of technically grounded leaders and innovators to serve societal needs. This will be accomplished, with a focus on Design, through an integrated multi-disciplinary curriculum.

The Humanities, Arts and Social Sciences, which is part of this integrated multi-disciplinary curriculum, will play an important part in helping students understand where society is heading and what more can be done, with the aid of technology and design to impact the future.

FACULTY POSITIONS

We seek candidates with PhD's in History, Literature, Sociology, Philosophy, Political Science, Psychology and Economics, to participate in a broad Humanities, Arts and Social Sciences curriculum. Of most immediate need are candidates with broad educational and interdisciplinary backgrounds to teach a World Civilizations and Cultures class for our students. Successful candidates will be placed on a tenure track and are expected to work with MIT faculty to develop curriculum for SUTD and take up residence in Singapore.

Be part of this exciting opportunity. Be part of the Singapore University of Technology and Design today.

Interested candidates are invited to submit their applications, together with a covering letter, detailing education, research and teaching interests, curriculum vitae with referral letters, two writing examples and sample syllabi, if any to www.sutd.edu.sg

We regret that only short listed candidates will be notified.

REQUIREMENTS FOR MANUSCRIPT SUBMISSION

When preparing a manuscript, please note that JAS is committed to publishing articles based on in-depth, original research. Authors should also take care to address the interests of our broad, multidisciplinary readership by raising larger questions of interest that reach beyond their precise research specialties. Authors are encouraged to consult recent issues of JAS for guidance on style and formatting.

- Please submit inquiries, manuscripts and images electronically to the Editor at jas@journalofasianstudies.org. Electronic text should use MS Word-compatible software; include a PDF file if using non-standard characters. Low-resolution images and illustrations are acceptable for the review process; all images, tables and figures should include titles or captions. Please note that in the event of publication, the author is responsible for acquiring high-resolution images along with permission to publish them. If electronic submission is not possible, please contact the editorial office at the email address, phone number or fax number listed above.
- Article manuscripts, including notes and references, should range between 8,000 and 10,000 words, or approximately thirty-five pages in length, and must include a 150 word abstract at the beginning of the document.
- Authors' names must be left off of the manuscript, as JAS engages in double-blind reviews.
- Manuscripts must be double-spaced with 12-point type and 1 inch margins including extracts, notes, and references, and formatted for letter-size (8.5 × 11 in.) paper if possible.
- Notes should be as few as possible and appear at the end of the text.
- Use parenthetical in-text citation, and author-date formatting for references per Chicago Manual of Style, 15th edition (Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 2003), pp. 616–24.
- Please use the following Romanization: Chinese: Pinyin; Japanese: Hepburn; Korean: McCune-Reischauer.
- Paper manuscript submissions are acceptable if electronic submission is not possible. Please include four copies of your document in the submission packet.
- Manuscripts submitted to JAS should not have been published elsewhere and should not be under review for publication elsewhere.

Articles in JAS represent neither the views of the Association for Asian Studies nor those of the JAS editors. The Editor is responsible for the final selection of content of JAS and reserves the right to reject any material deemed inappropriate for publication. Responsibility for opinions expressed and the accuracy of facts published in articles and reviews rests solely with the individual authors.
