The Liddesdale Heritage Association Exhibition 'The Armstrong Brothers of Castleton' 5 June–29 July 2002

An exhibition covering the lives and work of the physicians John Armstrong (1709–79) and George Armstrong (1719–89) is on display in the Liddesdale Heritage Centre, South Hermitage Street, Newcastleton, Roxburghshire. Both men published several medical books; George was a founder member of the Royal Medical Society, and in 1769 opened the Dispensary for the Infant Poor in London. John published poems and essays, in addition to medical journals. The Centre is open each day (except Tuesdays) from 1.30 p.m. to 4.30 p.m.
