Runaway Religious in England, c. 1240-1540

F. Donald Logan

Runaway religious were monks, canons and friars who had taken vows of religion and who fled their monasteries and returned to a life in the world. Not only the normal tugs of the world drew them away: there were other less obvious yet equally human motives, such as boredom. The church pursued them with her severest penalty, excommunication. This book is the first to tell their story.

Particular attention is given to imperial policy and rivalries, colonial rule and local response; the rise of nationalism, the process of decolonization and the transfer of power and institutions; the evolution of the Imperial and Commonwealth association in general; and the expansion and transformation of British culture.

Fictions of State

Culture and Credit in Britain, 1694–1994

PATRICK
BRANTLINGER

Brantlinger offers a cultural history of Great Britain focused on the concept of “public credit,” from the 1694 founding of the Bank of England to the present. He draws on literary texts ranging from Augustan satire to postmodern satire.

“Brantlinger is one of our leading cultural historians. In this new work on empire, debt, and fetishism, he extends his temporal and theoretical range. The results are stunning and, for modern citizens, disturbing.”

—REGENIA GAGNIER,
Stanford University

The History of the Reign of King Henry the Seventh

FRANCIS BACON

A New Edition, with Introduction, Annotation, and Interpretive Essay, by Jerry Weinberger. In his interpretive essay, Weinberger discusses contemporary debates on how best to approach and understand the History. He suggests that Bacon’s apparently contradictory work is a subtle and seamless picture of the modern state. $29.95

National Redeemer

Owain Glyndwr in Welsh Tradition

ELISSA R. HENKEN

Leader of the last major armed rebellion of the Welsh against the English in the early fifteenth century, Owain Glyndwr has become an important symbol of modern Welsh nationalism. Henken examines the roles Glyndwr played both in his own lifetime and in subsequent centuries. “This is a remarkable study, bringing new, rich historical and methodological insights to bear upon folklore studies.”—CARL LINDAHL, University of Houston

Hellenism and Homosexuality in Victorian Oxford

LINDA DOWLING

New in Paper! “This is a highly stimulating [book], providing a fine sense of how the sexual and the academic can interconnect and play with and against one another in reflecting and shaping their society.”—PETER STANSKY, Pre-Raphaelite Studies. $29.95 cloth, $12.95 paper

A Culture of Teaching

Early Modern Humanism in Theory and Practice

REBECCA
W. BUSHNELL

This account of humanist education in early modern England relates the history of humanism to debates about its current status. In the conflicts faced by early humanists, Bushnell identifies the origins of contemporary educational notions and practices, including approaches to discipline, gender and class differences, reading and interpretation, canon formation, and the transmission of tradition. $37.50 cloth, $15.95 paper

The End of Roman Britain

MICHAEL E. JONES

“An exciting, imaginative, and original examination of a significant historical problem. Michael Jones’s thesis, that Roman Britain fell not because Rome abandoned Britain but because the Britons rejected Rome, is certain to provoke controversy. The book is written in a witty and engaging style.”—RICHARD ABELS, United States Naval Academy. $45.00
