APSA Selects Black American Fellows

Eight students of political science have been named APSA Black American Fellows for 1983-84. Fellows may attend the school of their choice for graduate study, according to APSA staff associate Maurice Woodard.

Three of the Fellows will receive a stipend of $4,700 while the other five receive an honorary fellowship in recognition of their past record and unusual promise for graduate study.

The 1983-84 Black American Fellows are:

Fellows with stipend

Desiree S. Pedescleaux, Southern University

Katrina M. Bell, Mills College

Carol M. Swain, Roanoke College

Fellows without stipend

Ginger L. Simonton, Southern University
Voloria C. Williams, Northwestern University

Gregory G. Johnson, Florida State University

Rickey A. Raven, University of Houston

Barbara A. Leggett, Hampton Institute

"We encourage graduate departments to pay particular attention to these eight outstanding students as departments make their funding decisions for 1983-84," Woodard explained. Often political science departments give stipends to Black Graduate Fellows after they have been selected by APSA. When Fellows designated for APSA funding receive financial support from their graduate institution, the APSA is able to use the money which would have gone to them for other Black American Fellowships.

The selection committee, composed of members of the Committee on the Status of Blacks in the Profession, reviewed 45 applications in arriving at the eight students named as Fellows.

Members of the committee included: Irvin Brown, Atlanta University; Carolyn Eaglin, Bowie State College; Michael Preston, University of Illinois; Alfred Robertson, Southern University; and Mitchell F. Rice, Southwest Texas State University. □

Judicial Section To Be Organized

The Law, Courts, and Judicial Behavior Subfield Group is organizing a section within the Association. The organizing efforts involve two mailings to every member of the Association who indicates an interest in public law. The first letter explains briefly the history of the Subfield Group and also includes a questionnaire soliciting advice on the structure, purpose, and services of the proposed section. The second mailing contains a proposed set of by-laws for the section (based on suggestions received from the survey) and asks Association members to commit themselves to the creation of a section by signing a petition to be forwarded to the Association.

Association News

All members of the Association who receive a letter regarding the Judicial Section are encouraged to respond as soon as possible. Anyone interested in joining the Judicial Section who did not receive either of the letters should contact Karen O'Connor, Department of Political Science, Emory University, Atlanta, Georgia 30322, or Charles A. Johnson, Department of Political Science, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843.

APSA Prepares Directory of Applied Political Scientists

The Association is preparing a new Directory of Applied Political Scientists to supplement the APSA Membership Direc- tory. The purpose of the new directory is to facilitate contact and communication among applied political scientists and between applied political scientists and their colleagues engaged in college and university teaching and research.

The forthcoming Directory of Applied Political Scientists will list current APSA members pursuing non-academic careers. A supplemental directory questionnaire will automatically be sent to all members listed in the general directory who have identified themselves as non-academics. If your name is not included in the general membership directory or you failed to provide employment information, you will not receive a directory questionnaire. If you would like to receive a supplemental directory questionnaire, please contact: Robert Hauck, American Political Science Association, 1527 New Hampshire Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.
