Studies in Legal History

Prison and Plantation

Crime, Justice, and Authority in Massachusetts and South Carolina, 1767–1878

by Michael Stephen Hindus

“Breaks new ground in the history of American criminal justice.”

—Lawrence M. Friedman, Stanford University

Hindus compares patterns of authority and criminal law in two vastly different states. Despite the structural differences in the two criminal justice systems, he finds that each state treated its most marginal population—whether slaves or criminal class—harshly and that criminal justice in both states frequently served the same purpose: to protect the dominant social groups.

Law and Society in Puritan Massachusetts

Essex County, 1629–1692

by David Thomas Konig

“An interesting and provocative book. . . . Important for its subject and significant for its fresh interpretation.”—Choice

Konig shows how law gradually replaced religion and communalism as the source of social stability in Essex County. He questions the traditional assumptions about the “New England town” and proposes an entirely new interpretation of the witchcraft prosecutions of 1692.

Social Justice in the Liberal State

Bruce A. Ackerman

Certain to become the most important work in political philosophy since John Rawls's A Theory of Justice, this book by Bruce Ackerman presents a new and compelling vision of a liberal democratic society. The key to the liberal ideal, Ackerman argues, is found not in the myth of a social contract nor the search for social utility but in the power of Neutral dialogue to resolve such central concerns as who will be born, how children will be educated, how much each adult will own, how adults will exchange their labor and capital with one another, and how much they must leave for succeeding generations.

"A novel, mind-stretching book."—Henry J. Friendly,
Senior Judge, U.S. Court of Appeals $17.50

The New Social Contract

An Inquiry into Modern Contractual Relations

Ian R. Macneil

Modern economic exchange occurs within a huge range of ongoing, ever-present relations—in employment, in the family, within corporate structures, and ultimately within nation-states and world economic systems. The phenomenon of contractual relations, commonly ignored in economic and legal analysis, is the subject of this new book. Macneil discusses in detail both the nature of contract and its normative aspects and then goes on to explore selected issues of concern in the area of modern relational contract law. $12.95

RESEARCH IN AMERICAN LEGAL HISTORY
at the University of Wisconsin, Madison

The University of Wisconsin, supported by a matching grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities, announces a program to encourage and support research in American legal history, 1870-1980. The program will bring legal historians to Madison to work with a resident core group of scholars in utilizing the resources of several research collections on the Madison campus.

There will be three summer workshops in 1981, 1982, and 1983, each with a different theme. The 1981 workshop will meet from June 15th to July 24th, and will focus on Law in the Life of Associations, 1870-1980. Tentative topics for 1982 and 1983 respectively are The Legal History of Regulation: Ideology and Practice in the Administrative Process, and The Legal Profession.

Applicants should normally hold academic appointments at the level of assistant professor or higher. Interested persons should submit a resume and a summary of their teaching and research accomplishments, current research interest and its applicability to the annual workshop.

Further inquiries, and applications, should be sent to

Professor Stanley I. Kutler
Director, Legal History Program
Department of History
The University of Wisconsin
Madison, Wisconsin 53706

Applications for the 1981 Workshop are due January 15, 1981. Announcements of awards will be made on or about February 1st, 1981.

1981 ANNUAL MEETING OF THE LAW AND SOCIETY ASSOCIATION

Amherst, Massachusetts

Tentative Dates: June 12-14, 1981

CALL FOR PAPERS, PANELS, AND SUGGESTIONS

June 1981 may seem remote right now, but the Program Committee is beginning to organize panels and develop new ingredients for the program of our annual meeting.

We need your ideas and welcome your participation! Please move now on ideas you may have for panels, papers, round table discussions, debates, or other suggestions for the program. Have you seen sessions in other professional meetings that you would like to see at an LSA meeting? Is there another format or schedule that you consider more appropriate or convenient for our association? Do you know of individuals or groups whose participation should be directly solicited? Do you have a paper that you would like to submit if you knew of a panel on which to present it?

Send your proposals and suggestions to
