

Wallace Sayre, professor of government at the College of the City of New York and editor of the Public Administration Review, delivered the annual lectures in public administration at the University of Alabama, December 3-7, 1951. The subject of the 1951 series of lectures was "Politics and Administrative Organization."

Eric Voegelin of Louisiana State University delivered several lectures in Washington, D. C., and Maryland during the month of February, 1952. On February 12, he gave a lecture on the "History of Ideas and Periods of Civilization" before the Humanities Club of Washington. On February 13 and 14, he addressed the Political Science Seminar and the History of Ideas Club at the Johns Hopkins University on the respective topics, "Political Gnosis" and "The Discovery of the Soul—in Ancient and Modern Philosophy." On February 15 and 17, he gave two lectures at St. Johns College on the respective topics, "The Wrath of Achilles" and "The Nature of Modernity."

Asher N. Christensen delivered a series of lectures on American political parties and politics at the Salzburg Seminar in Austria during the month of February, 1952.

Josef L. Kunz of the University of Toledo delivered an address on "The Status of the Philosophy of Law in the World at Mid-Twentieth Century and the Contribution of Mexico" in Mexico City in September, 1951. The occasion for the address was the observance of the four hundredth anniversary of the founding of the National University of Mexico.

Philip E. Jacobs, associate professor of political science at the University of Pennsylvania, recently delivered a series of lectures before international service seminars conducted by the American Friends Service Committee. The topic for the series was: "The Functioning of International Organization as an Instrument in Peace Making."

APPOINTMENTS AND STAFF CHANGES

Ethan P. Allen, director of the Bureau of Government Research and chairman of the department of political science at the University of Kansas, is serving on the Kansas State Governor's Committee on Fiscal Reorganization.

Otto Amann has been appointed as a research associate in the Bureau of Public Administration of the University of Tennessee.

Hans Aufrecht of the legal department of the International Monetary Fund has been conducting a graduate seminar on international finance at the American University during the winter term.

Ernest Bartley has been advanced to an associate professorship at the University of Florida.

Paul Beckett is on leave from the State College of Washington to serve as professor of public administration and chairman of a new department of public administration at the American University of Beirut, Beirut, Lebanon. The new department is being organized under a grant of Point Four Program funds and is to provide training for students who desire to enter the service of governments in the Near East.

Eric C. Bellquist has returned to the University of California (Berkeley) after two years' service as public affairs officer, United States Embassy, Stockholm. He has been promoted to a full professorship at the University of California (Berkeley).

George S. Blair has been appointed assistant professor of political science and training officer in public administration at the University of Tennessee.

George I. Blanksten recently returned to his position as assistant professor of political science at Northwestern University after a year spent in Argentina on a Social Science Research Council fellowship.

R. Wallace Brewster became head of the department of political science of the Pennsylvania State College on July 1, 1951, to serve for a three-year period. He succeeded Professor M. Nelson McGeary, who was head of the department for a three-year term.

Alfred G. Buehler of the University of Pennsylvania has been serving as chairman of the Emergency Tax Study Committee of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and as tax consultant for the Vermont Tax Study Commission.

Eugene Burdick has returned to the University of California (Berkeley) after a period of service as academic consultant for an advanced course in strategy and sea power at the Naval War College, Newport, Rhode Island.

Harwood L. Childs, professor of politics at Princeton University, was a visiting professor at New York University during the fall term of the session of 1951-52.

Edgar B. Cale has returned to the department of political science at the University of Pennsylvania following a two-year leave of absence during which he served as executive secretary of the Commission which drafted the new home-rule charter for the City of Philadelphia. He has been named associate director of the new Albert M. Greenfield Center for Human Relations, which has offices on the campus of the University of Pennsylvania.

Kenneth C. Cole has been named acting chairman of the department of political science of the University of Washington.

Thomas I. Cook of the Johns Hopkins University is serving as a public member of the Federal Wage Stabilization Board at Richmond, Virginia.

Robert C. DaCosta has resigned his position at the University of Tennessee to accept a position in New York City.

Enriqueta de Diaz-Thomé of the faculty of the Collegio de Mexico is a visiting lecturer, for the current academic year, in Latin-American government in the department of political science and the School of Inter-American Studies at the University of Florida. The lectureship is sponsored by the University of Florida under a grant from the United States Department of State.

J. E. Dovell has been advanced to an associate professorship at the University of Florida.

Paul S. Dull will be on sabbatical leave from the University of Oregon during the academic year 1952-53. He has been awarded an area travel grant by the Social Science Research Council for study in Japan, and will spend the sabbatical year studying Japanese political behavior.

William Ebenstein, professor of politics at Princeton University, has recently been teaching a course in the history of political theory at the New School of Social Research, New York City.

John H. Ferguson, on sabbatical leave from Pennsylvania State College, served on behalf of the American Friends Service Committee as an observer at the recent meeting of the United Nations Assembly in Paris.

Ludwig F. Freund has returned to Roosevelt College after spending nine months in Germany under a travel grant from the United States Department of State. While in Germany, he served as guest professor of political science at the University of Erlangen and the College of Political Science at Munich.

John Gill has resigned his position as research associate in the Bureau of Public Administration of the University of Tennessee to accept an appointment with the Army Civilian Overseas Personnel in Turkey.

Morton M. Grodzins has been appointed editor of the University of Chicago Press, but will continue to maintain his connection with the University's department of political science, in which he is associate professor.

Ernst B. Haas has been appointed lecturer in political science at the University of California (Berkeley).

J. Eugene Harley has been named head of the department of political science at the University of Southern California.

John S. Harris is serving as visiting associate professor of political science at the University of Tennessee for the academic year 1951-52.

Francis Heller has been promoted to an associate professorship in political science at the University of Kansas, and has been granted a leave of absence from the University for military duty. He is stationed at Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

Willard N. Hogan has taken a semester's leave from his position at the State University Teachers College, New Paltz, New York, for work, under the auspices of the Brookings Institution, on a study of the United Nations.

Jack Holmes has resigned from his position at the University of New Mexico to become director of the New Mexico Legislative Council.

Alfred J. Hotz has been advanced to a full professorship and named chairman of the department of political science at Western Reserve University.

Frederick C. Irion, associate professor of government at the University of New Mexico, has been appointed director of the Division of Government Research at that institution.

Horace B. Jacobini, formerly an instructor at The Citadel, has joined the staff of the Huntsville Center of the University of Alabama as assistant professor of political science.

Philip E. Jacobs has been named director of the Summer School and of College Collateral Courses at the University of Pennsylvania.

Norman Jacobson joined the political science staff of the University of California (Berkeley) as instructor in the fall of 1951.

Carey B. Joynt, formerly a graduate student at Clark University, has been appointed to an assistant professorship in the department of international relations at Lehigh University.

William J. Keefe, formerly a graduate student at Northwestern University, has joined the staff of the Birmingham Center, University of Alabama, as assistant professor of political science.

A. E. A. Kermin, professor of modern history at Ibrahim Pasha University, Shubra, Cairo, Egypt, is a visiting member of the staff of the Woodrow Wilson School of Foreign Affairs of the University of Virginia, where he is aiding in the development of a program in modern Near Eastern studies. He has come to the University of Virginia through the assistance of the Conference Board of the Associated Research Councils under the Fulbright program for foreign professors.

Robert N. Larson is serving on the staff of the University of Rhode Island during the absence of Assistant Professor John O. Stitely.

J. T. Law is on leave from his position at Pennsylvania State College and is engaged in graduate study at the University of Wisconsin.

George Lenczowski of Hamilton College is serving as visiting associate professor at the University of California (Berkeley) during the spring semester of 1952.

Albert Lepawsky is on leave from his position at the University of Alabama for the spring semester of 1951-52 to serve as visiting professor at the University of California (Berkeley) during the absence of Professor Samuel C. May.

Edmund Lesoir of Brussels, Belgium, has resigned as secretary general of the International Institute of Administrative Sciences after serving for many years in this capacity. He will remain with the Institute as honorary secretary general and consultant.

Werner Levi has been advanced to a full professorship at the University of Minnesota.

Leslie M. Lipson has been advanced to a full professorship at the University of California (Berkeley).

Norton Long has resumed his teaching and research duties at Western Reserve University after an extended assignment as consultant to the Defense Production Administration in Washington, D. C.

Herbert McClosky has been advanced to an associate professorship at the University of Minnesota.

Austin F. Macdonald of the University of California (Berkeley) is on sabbatical leave for the spring semester of the academic year 1951-52. He is spending his leave in travel and study in England and Europe.

Hugh R. Marshall has been advanced to an assistant professorship at the University of Florida.

Charles E. Martin has resigned from the chairmanship of the department of political science of the University of Washington, a post which he has held for approximately a quarter of a century. He will devote full time to his work as professor of international law and political science and director of the Institute of International Affairs at the University of Washington.

Robert E. Matteson has been appointed lecturer in political science at the University of Pennsylvania.

Samuel C. May of the University of California (Berkeley) is on sabbatical leave for the spring semester of the academic year 1951-52.

Arthur Naftalin has been advanced to an associate professorship at the University of Minnesota.

William Nolan has resigned from his position as research associate in the Bureau of Public Administration of the University of Tennessee, after being called to active duty in the military service.

Lowell G. Noonan has been promoted to an assistant professorship at the University of Southern California.

Peter H. Odegard is on leave from the University of California (Berkeley) for the academic year 1951-52, and is spending the year in England and Europe. His activities while abroad have included a series of lectures by him at Oxford University.

Frederic D. Ogden has been advanced to an assistant professorship in political science at the University of Alabama.

Louise Overacker is on a year's leave from Wellesley College for a study of labor parties in Australia and New Zealand under a Guggenheim fellowship.

Ira Polley, formerly assistant professor of political science at Michigan State College, and more recently a field examiner of the National Labor Relations Board, has been named chairman for Region 8, Wage Stabilization Board. The Region includes the states of Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and Montana, and Douglas County, Wisconsin.

Harold S. Quigley has resigned from the chairmanship of the department of political science at the University of Minnesota, but will continue as professor of political science at that institution.

Jesse W. Reeder, who recently received his doctorate at Cornell University, is serving as lecturer in political science at the University of Utah for the academic year 1951-52.

Allan R. Richards has been appointed assistant professor of government at the University of New Mexico.

Clarence W. Rife of Hamline University served as visiting professor in the "Washington Semester Program" at the American University during the first semester of 1951-52.

Paul M. Rilling, formerly an instructor at North Texas State College, has joined the staff of the Mobile Center, University of Alabama, as an instructor.

Paul Schillings has been named director of services of the International Institute of Administrative Sciences, with headquarters in Brussels, Belgium. In this capacity he will take over the duties formerly performed by Mr. Edmund Lesoir as secretary general of the Institute. In addition, he will continue in his position as director of the Institute's Administrative Practices Office.

Lloyd N. Short became chairman of the department of political science at the University of Minnesota at the beginning of the winter quarter of 1952.

Frank Smith has resigned from his position as research associate in the Bureau of Public Administration of the University of Tennessee, after being called to active duty in the military service.

T. Noel Stern has taken a year's leave from his position as assistant professor of political science at Boston University to accept a Fulbright fellowship. He is spending the year in France, where his activities include lectures at the University of Rennes, the University of Strasbourg and the University of Grenoble.

William S. Stokes of the University of Wisconsin is serving as visiting professor at the University of California (Berkeley) for the academic year 1951-52 during the absence of Professors Odegard and Macdonald.

William D. Stout has resigned from his position as instructor in political science at the University of Tennessee to accept an appointment with the Army Civilian Overseas Personnel in Japan.

Dorothee Strauss has been appointed research associate in the Bureau of Public Administration at the University of Tennessee.

Robert Strausz-Hupe, associate professor of political science at the University of Pennsylvania, has been named chairman of the International Relations Group Committee of that institution.

Thor Swanson has been appointed to an instructorship in public administration at the State College of Washington to serve during the absence of Professor Paul Beckett.

Carl B. Swisher of the Johns Hopkins University is serving as director of research for the Maryland Commission on Administrative Organization.

Julian Towster, who has been serving as a visiting associate professor at the University of California (Berkeley), has been appointed to an associate professorship at that institution.

James D. Van Putten of Holland, Michigan, is a visiting member of the political science staff at the State University Teachers College, New Paltz, New York, during the absence of Professor Willard Hogan.

A. Curtis Wilgus, formerly of George Washington University, has been appointed director of the School of Inter-American Studies at the University of Florida.

René Williamson is serving as acting head of the department of political science of the University of Tennessee during the absence of Professor Lee S. Greene.

IN MEMORIAM

Because they express sentiments widely shared in the profession, the "Memorial Resolutions of the Faculty of the University of Wisconsin on the Death of Frederic Austin Ogg" are presented below (Ed.).

Frederic Austin Ogg, Emeritus Professor of Political Science, died at his home in Madison on October 23, 1951. He was a member of our faculty for thirty-four years. Professor Ogg, and through him the University of Wisconsin, was known and revered, in every land where men and women concern themselves with the scholarly study of government.

He was born in Solsberry, Indiana, February 8, 1878, and grew up on a farm. The family moved to Greencastle partly so that Frederic might go to college. At DePauw University he quickly and zestfully discovered his bent for a scholarly career. He received the Ph.B. from DePauw in 1899, the A.M. from Indiana University in 1900, and the Ph.D. in history from Harvard University in 1908. In 1903 he married Emma Virginia Perry. His teaching began at Manual Training High School in Indianapolis in 1900. There followed academic posts in history at Indiana University, Harvard University, Boston University and Simmons College.

In 1914 he accepted the invitation of the University of Wisconsin to become an associate professor of political science; and he and Mrs. Ogg established at 1715 Kendall Avenue a gracious home which was also a workshop. Here he followed a routine of incredible labor, usually beginning at eight in the morning and ending at midnight, varied principally by the social occasions which he and Mrs. Ogg enjoyed. This routine enabled him to do the work of many men. As teacher he lectured in a variety of courses, moving from American government, through comparative government, to the government and politics of the Far East, his teaching delight of later years. Because he did not like to teach large courses in subjects on which he had written books, he turned instead to the training of graduate students. These students occupy important academic and government posts in many parts of the world. In 1950 fifteen of them, younger leaders in many fields, published The Study of Comparative Government, a volume of essays in his honor. He was chairman of his department and of the graduate division of social studies for many years; and during 1944-1946 he was chairman of the Curriculum Committee of the College of Letters and Science, where his judicious, wise, and patient leadership contributed immeasurably to improvements in the curriculum accepted by the faculty.