Clementina Suárez: Her Life and Poetry

Janet N. Gold

"Masterful storytelling. . . . I found myself riveted to the pages, eager to learn more about Suárez's life. . . . Within the first pages of the prologue, the reader feels included in this very private world. One of the greatest merits of the text is Gold's own prose, elegant and poetic in its own right."—Nancy Saporta Sternbach, Smith College

Power and Violence in the Colonial City

Oruro from the Mining Renaissance to the Rebellion of Tupac Amaru (1740-1782)

Oscar Cornblit

Elizabeth Ladd Glick, Translator

This book examines the characteristics of political power in the cities of the colonial Spanish Empire, based on a detailed study of the mining city of Oruro in Alto Peru (present-day Bolivia), emphasizing the workings of the judicial system and the role of the bureaucracy. The analysis focuses on the Indian uprisings of the 1780s and the reasons that led to the alliances or confrontations between the actors of the distinct bands.

About the House

Lévi-Strauss and Beyond

Janet Carsten and

Stephen Hugh-Jones, Editors

Exploring the interrelationships between buildings, people and ideas, this collection analyzes "house" systems in Southeast Asia and South America. It is inspired by Lévi-Strauss' suggestion that the multi-functional noble houses of Medieval Europe were simply the best-known examples of a widespread social institution.

Literature and Resistance in Guatemala

Textual Modes and Cultural Politics from El señor presidente to Rigoberta Menchu

Marc Zimmerman

What circumstances lead writers in a poor, multi-ethnic and largely illiterate country to produce a literature that both expresses and affects opposition to the regime? Who are these writers? What is the nature of their work? Zimmerman's study examines these and other questions about the literature of resistance in Guatemala, especially since the days of Estrada Cabrera up to the events of May and June of 1993.

The book provides the cultural context for various modes of literary production and analysis, and then identifies the currents of opposition in the nation's fiction, poetry, and testimonial writing. It details the cultural politics involving Guatemala writers, their groups and organization during the years of Cerezo and Serrano-Elias, paying particular attention to the role of women and indigenous groups (Rigoberta Menchu among them) in the evolving social and cultural struggle.

The Women of Tijucopapo

(As Mulheres de Tijucopapo)
Marilyne Felinto
Translated and with an afterword
by Irene Matthews

Marilyne Felinto is one of a new wave of young Brazilian writers, and her work is among the very best. Her fiction connects the striking contrasts of a young woman's experience and the cross-purposes of modern Brazil. In this, Felinto's first novel, a young woman's journey to her mother's birthplace leads to a feminist awakening when she meets the Amazon-like women of Tijucopapo. £9.95 pb £28.50 hb

Mission Culture on the Upper Amazon

Native Tradition,
Jesuit Enterprise,
and Secular Policy
in Moxos, 1660–1880
David Block

David Block describes the formation of a new society in the Moxos region, which began with the arrival of the Jesuits in that region and continued even after the expulsion of the Jesuits in 1767. Block's nuanced treatment of the mission encounter—one extending over a large time period—permits a balanced understanding of the mission enterprise, native response, and the cultural syntheses that ensued. £28.50 hb

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

The Journal of Latin American Studies is published three times a year, in February, May and October. Its editorial offices are located in the Institute of Latin American Studies, University of London. The editorial board includes representatives of the Centres or Institutes of Latin American Studies in the Universities of Cambridge, Essex, Glasgow, Liverpool, London and Oxford.

The scope of the Journal is the study of Latin America from the standpoint of the social sciences (including history and international relations). Articles on literature and the arts are not normally included, but the editors are pleased to consider contributions in the field of intellectual and cultural history. Articles with an inter-disciplinary approach are particularly welcome.

When an article has been accepted for publication, the author is strongly encouraged to send a copy of the final version on computer disk (Apple Macintosh or IBM compatible PC) together with the hard copy typescript, giving details of the wordprocessing software used (Microsoft Word, Word or Word Perfect). However, the publisher reserves the right to typeset material by conventional means if an author's disk proves unsatisfactory.

Contributions are invited from all parts of the world. Articles should generally not be more than 8000 words long. The article should be accompanied by an abstract of not more than 100 words. Two copies typed with double spacing should be submitted. A style sheet is available from the editors. The Journal is published in English, but articles may also be submitted in Spanish or Portuguese; if the article is accepted, translation into English will be the responsibility of the author. Tables, diagrams and maps may be included by arrangement with the editors. The Journal only publishes original contributions; translations of articles already published will not be accepted. Each contributor will receive, free of charge, 25 offprints of the article and a copy of the issue of the Journal in which it appears.

The Journal publishes book reviews in each issue. Not all books received can be reviewed and editorial policy gives preference to substantial reviews of books regarded as of major importance for the disciplines covered by the Journal.

All contributions and editorial correspondence should be addressed to Journal of Latin American Studies, Institute of Latin American Studies, 31 Tavistock Square, London, WC1H 9HA.
